In-Flight Stickup Results in Death

MANILA (Reuters) — Four armed men Wednesday night held up 39 passengers and crew of a Philippine Air Lines plane in flight and killed one passenger and wounded another, the pilot reported on arrival here.

NDP Charges

Co-operative Land Bank 'Only Bubble'

By IAN STREET, Legislative Reporter

An NDP spokesman charged Wednesday that the provincial government's land bank is nothing more "than a speculative bubble waiting to be burst."

Robert Williams, MLA for Vancouver East, issued a written statement which claimed the joint statement by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and Resources Minister Ray Willison on a pilot 1000 project for the proposed land bank did not stand up to scrutiny.

The NDP member charges:

- The land involved in the so-called land bank was partly reserved for park purposes earlier this year, and most of it is too steep to build on.
- The co-operative named to carry out the scheme is non-existent.
- The company that was named as financial adviser to the scheme is non-existent.
- The trade unions the government claimed were backing the scheme either deny any involvement whatever or have no commitment to the program.

"The land bank" in fact consists of no buildable land or land within a proposed regional park," Mr. Williams said. "The government has a memorandum of agreement with a non-existent co-op that is advised by a non-existent company with financial backing from trade

Hawk or Peace Hope?—MPs

Opposite Reactions Greet U.S. Presidential Result

OTTAWA (CP) — Opinion on Parliament Hill about the election of Richard Nixon as United States president varies from apprehension to a feeling that it could be good for peace in Vietnam.

New Democrat David

Lewis, his party's parliamentary leader, said he was disturbed by the election result because "Mr. Nixon has shown himself to be at least hawkish — if not a full-grown hawk — on Vietnam."

"We are worried about the effect his election might have on the Paris peace talks."

Liberal David Anderson, freshman MP for Esquimalt-Saanich and former officer in the external affairs department, took a contrary view. "Candidly, I think Mr. Nixon's election could improve the chances of success in Paris," he said. U.S. and North Vietnam representatives have been negotiating in Paris.

Anderson, who has travelled in the Far East and speaks Chinese, reasoned that the North Vietnamese regarded Hubert Humphrey as a somewhat weak leader. His election might have led them to stall and keep up the pressure in the hope of total victory.

"I think the North Vietnamese now will take the United States more seriously than if Mr. Humphrey had been elected," Anderson said. Thus, the North Vietnamese would be more likely to seek a peace settlement.

Nixon's Second Try Successful

From UPI, AP

Republican Richard Nixon, 55, in the American political comeback of the century, won his second try for the presidency of the United States Wednesday in an election that wasn't decided until the noon concession by rival Vice President Hubert Humphrey. Nixon, who himself had served as vice-president for two terms under Dwight Eisenhower, immediately promised to work for domestic unity and world peace, then flew to Washington for a brief and touching reunion with old soldier Eisenhower, recovering from a series of heart attacks.

Nixon and his family, who had accompanied him through the campaign and added a homelike contrast to a slick political strategy, then flew south to Florida for three days of rest at Key Biscayne. He asked for and was given an Air Force jet transport for the flight.

After a 45-minute visit with former President Eisenhower, recuperating from a series of heart attacks, Nixon said of his former boss: "The election seemed to serve as a tonic. He appeared as pleased

Canada Snaps Space Bomb

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian air defence camera has photographed the new Soviet space bomb in orbit, informed sources said Wednesday.

The authoritative British publication Jane's All The World's Aircraft reported last week that the Russian space bomb is more than six feet long and four feet in diameter.

The bomb can be fired into an orbit some 100 miles above the earth and can be commanded by remote control to drop onto any selected target in the world under its orbital path.

Officials here said the three-ton $150,000 Baker-Nunn camera operated by Air Defence Command at Cold Lake, Alta., can photograph an object the size of a basketball 50,000 miles from the earth.

Jane's says there have been at least 12 test launchings of space bombs by the Russians, the earliest being Jan. 25, 1967.

The bombs, apparently unarmed, re-entered the atmosphere before completion of one orbit.

Officials here have said that the orbital bomb could render useless the elaborate North American air defence network in Canada and the northern U.S.

The orbital or space bomb was originally described here as the "reverse missile." That is, instead of flying over north polar regions to North America, it could approach this continent from south polar regions, thus avoiding the ballistic missile early warning line and other detection systems.

There was no official confirmation that the Cold Lake camera has photographed the space bomb in flight.

North American Air Defence Command recently praised the Cold Lake unit for its accuracy of information on satellite locations.

The unit has "set standards for the Baker-Nunn space sensor system," said Col. W. B. Gerlitz, commander of the U.S. Air Force's 3rd Aerospace Surveillance Wing which receives the Cold Lake reports.

Cold Lake is one of three such military sites in the world photographing and tracking satellites for NORAD's space defence centre at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Foursome Involved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Assets of a group of financial companies were frozen by court order Wednesday and parties of police seized truckloads of documents in a B.C. government investigation.

Firms involved were identified as Commonwealth Acceptance Corp. Ltd., Commonwealth Investors Syndicate Ltd., Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. and Diversified Income Fund, shares A and B.

Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan of British Columbia Supreme Court appointed a receiver to take control of assets but there was no immediate indication of what the investigation involved.

PROBE STARTED

Lawyer Sidney Cross, acting for the provincial government, said he had been advised that the attorney-general's department has begun an investigation into affairs of the companies.

Up to 70 RCMP men, some called from off-duty, spent hours loading documents into vehicles and late Wednesday night had a truck outside the head office of Commonwealth Acceptance.

FIRMS' ASSETS

Mr. Justice Rutan named chartered accountant A. D. Stanley as trustee, receiver and manager of the assets of the companies, at the request of Mr. Cross.

Mr. Cross said banks and trust companies had been advised not to withdraw or deal in assets of the companies.

Mr. Stanley of West Vancouver, who became president of Commonwealth Trust at the beginning of August, said: "I have had no sleep for the last 48 hours as a result of this and I have been told to say nothing for the next 24 hours. The attorney-general is planning a press release for Friday."

IN ADVANCE

In Victoria, Gilbert Kennedy, deputy attorney-general, was reported to have conferred with RCMP officers until after 3 a.m. Wednesday in advance of the raids.

He could not be reached Wednesday night. His wife said: "He had hardly any sleep at all and we finally managed to get him to go to bed."

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson is in Regina on other business.

Most top officers of the companies could not be reached by phone.

'BY SURPRISE'

One who was, Mrs. Margaret A. Harting of Vancouver, said: "This has all taken me completely by surprise."

Mrs. Harting, a lawyer, is listed as second vice-president and associate secretary of Diversified Income Securities Ltd., treasurer and director of Centennial Mortgage Corp., director of Commonwealth Trust Co., Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. and Commonwealth Acceptance Corp.

Island Man Dies After Fight

NANAIMO — RCMP are investigating a stabbing death in Nanaimo.

An unidentified man was pronounced dead in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital shortly after 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Police indicated there was a fight in which one man hit another with a pop bottle, and the second struck back with an eight-inch carving knife, inflicting a stomach wound.

Relief Flights Off

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian relief flights into Biafra have been grounded for the last "two or three days" because Biafran authorities have not given clearance for day flights, Defence Minister Cadieux said Wednesday. (See also Pages 6, 28.)

Cadieux told reporters the suspension of flights had not resulted from Tuesday night's incident in which a Swedish relief plane was bombed and strafed on a Biafran airstrip, with several casualties.

Czechs Burn Flags

BRATISLAVA (UPI) — Thousands of jeering students Wednesday night ripped to shreds and burned Soviet flags in the streets of Bratislava. Russian troops made no move to stop the demonstrators.

In Prague, a crowd of 150 bystanders, held back by police officers standing shoulder to shoulder, jeered and whistled when Soviet limousines sped to the Prague theatre with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kostov and Soviet Ambassador Stepan Chervomenko.

The demonstrations in protest against the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia came on the eve of celebrations marking the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The protests began in this Slovakian capital when an esti-

Sex-and-Smut Cry Rocks Play Pause

AM, SHOW BIZ: That was the week that was for RPA Productions' Harry Hill. During the last performance of Pinter's play The Homecoming, a man scurried into the lobby during intermission shouting "Sex and smut! That's all it is—sex and smut! Call the police!"

Mr. Hill asked him to shut up or leave, or else he would call the police.

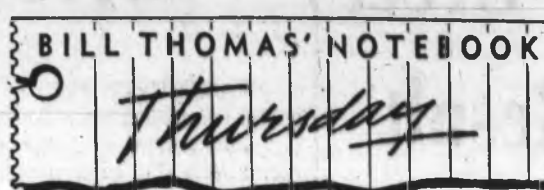

It's probably a good thing that Mr. Hill is away on holiday in Minneapolis because RPA is in a rut. The next play, to run Nov. 14, is William Goodheart's Generation, which is a comedy but also a bit on the risqué side.

This play is directed by Tim Bress, who has had two Canada Council grants and a Ford Foundation performing arts scholarship.

ODD HAPPENING: Not all evenings dining out seem to be happy. A reader writes that he had "dinner for two last night with four items on the bill and three of those items were from 10 per cent to 25 per cent overcharge compared to the bill of fare and the wine list."

The diner "pointed out three errors and the bill came back with three alterations in ink, but even then it wasn't right."

The basic problem here is that there is little point in discussion with the waiters or waitresses. Any problems with the bill should be taken up with the management right away.

Dining establishments rely on the repeat business of local customers, and managements know that sometimes there are errors and less often bills are padded. The manager or maître d'hôtel should be told at once if there are problems with any bill. They want to know what is going on, and they want happy customers.

SICK CALL: Playwright Peter Cullen is in Royal Jubilee Hospital for surgery. His highly successful Pinter's Homecoming ran on CBC, the British Broadcasting Company's radio network and now the script is in Hollywood for consideration.

He would like a card or two, and perhaps a few visitors when he recovers.

ODD TWIST: The subject of convention activity is getting rather boring, but the University of British Columbia has come up with a new twist. The ivy-hall league has hired bandleader Dal Richards as convention manager.

His job is to promote use of the university buildings during the summer by conference and convention groups. Perhaps Victoria can coax Billy Tickle out of retirement.

PIPE DREAM: Maltwood Museum curator John Freeman went rummaging about and found a pipe organ scattered about a storage area.

The instrument will be rebuilt for use in the Music Division. It dates from the 18th century and will be restored by Hugo Spilker. Cost of the work is covered by a $3,000 grant from the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation.

NO SHOW: The "Amazing Demant" promised "A night out of this world," but he is now right out of it. He has called off his shows in the McPherson Playhouse which had been set for Nov. 8 and 9.

Theatre manager John Dyck says there was little response, so the hypnotist went home to Hamilton and called off the program. It had been a success when it played in a school auditorium here a few weeks ago.

Floating Black Spots Signify Middle Age or Thereabouts

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: For the past month or so I have been seeing little floating black spots and am wondering if you can tell me the cause of this and the cure. — M.H.

In most cases, these floaters or specks that seem to drift around in the eyes don't mean anything except that you must likely be middle-aged or thereabouts.

Technically they are called "vitreous floaters," but in plain language, they are little particles in the thick fluid which is contained in the eyeball.

They don't do any harm other than being a nuisance — if you let them. Rarely do they really interfere with your ability to see or read. They are too small.

It is the experience of most folks that these floaters come and go. You may have them for a few days, or a few weeks, or some times for a few months. Then you may come to the sudden realization that they aren't there any more. There may or may not be others later. There isn't anything to do about them, but since they represent nothing harmful, the best thing is to learn to ignore them.

One word of warning: once in a great while such spots in the eyes (more often if they are larger and do not move as freely as common floaters) do may indicate some serious eye disorder.

In such a case — obviously — go to your eye doctor.

Do I recommend an eye specialist for every attack of floaters? No. But I will make glaucoma, a really dangerous old enough to encounter these floaters, he also is old enough so an occasional eye examination is a wise precaution.

For one thing, one should guard against glaucoma. This eye disease, which causes a great deal of blindness, comes on with little or no warning in its early stages. When the patient finally begins to notice any symptoms, the disease is sufficiently advanced as to make treatment more difficult.

The one early sign which can be detected is an increase in pressure inside the eyeball. This can be discovered readily enough with a suitable instrument in the hand of an eye specialist (some other doctors are beginning to use these instruments).

So if you are worried about "floaters" a visit to the doctor may set your mind at ease — and at the same time afford an opportunity to make sure that glaucoma, a really dangerous ailment, is not present.

Nixon Win Comeback of Century over the results of this as his own."

When Nixon's plane arrived, in Miami several policemen were on the roof of the big airport armed with shotguns. Secret service agents and police swarmed through and around the terminal. Fire trucks and an ambulance were standing by as a precaution.

Nixon stayed only briefly at the airport, then headed for his retreat at nearby Key Biscayne.

Democrat Humphrey, trying to keep the White House in his party's hands for a third term since the late John Kennedy won in 1960, was a hopeless underdog in the early campaigning. However, he fought his way to within striking distance of his goal only to lose Wednesday morning when California, then Illinois fell to the Nixon machine.

The outcome was so close that Nixon did not appear in public until Humphrey messaged his congratulations from Minneapolis. When the result was obvious, Humphrey, with his chin out, a smile on his lips and eyes brimming with tears, urged his supporters to join him in uniting the country.

Unity was the theme of Nixon's press conference address. "It will be my administration's main objective," he promised.

Nixon also promised an "open administration" welcoming the support of all parties and Americans of all races. He will be formally sworn into office on Jan. 20.

Third party candidate George Wallace, the former Alabama governor who had hoped to make big inroads into the U.S. political scene, garnered close to 10,000,000 votes or 14 per cent of the popular vote total. However, his power was restricted to five southern states — Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, and Mississippi.

Wallace's share of the vote was the greatest for a third party standard bearer since Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin ran in 1924 and won 16.6 per cent.

The closeness of the 1968 race was evident in the expectation Tuesday night that the antiquated machinery of the Electoral College vote would be needed to pick a announce within a few days the fundamental conditions that South Vietnam feels can bring peace.

Thieu has refused to recognize the NLF. He has said it can take part in expanded talks only as part of the North Vietnamese delegation, which has been meeting with the U.S. in Paris since May.

There have been signs that Thieu gambled on Nixon winning, hoping this would ensure greater support for his position than he has been getting from Johnson.

Now Nixon must learn whether Johnson would want him to fulfill a campaign offer to fly either to Paris or to Saigon to help the peace-making effort.

VERY LEAST

At the very least Nixon is considered likely to assign, with Johnson's consent, a personal envoy to U.S. Ambassador Averell Harriman and Cyrus Vance in Paris until Jan. 20. On that date Nixon assumes office and both Harriman and Vance will be at his disposal in case he should want to name new chief delegates.

Any appraisal of the Vietnamese situation will need to take account Saigon fears that by allowing the front a voice of its own in Paris, the central issue of the war is being prejudiced.

That issue focuses on who ultimately will rule South Vietnam—Thieu's regime or the Viet Cong. Saigon-Washington relations seem likely to be imperilled unless an accommodation is reached quickly.

WAR FRONT

On the war front early today U.S. marines and Vietnamese rangers supported by tanks, artillery and air strikes battled a strong red force near South Vietnam's northern coast. The Jews to Blame?

ANMAN, Jordan (UPI)—King Hussein said Wednesday that Israel may have fomented the shooting crisis between Jordanian troops and Arab commandoes earlier this week.

Hussein also denied he was trying to crush the Arab guerrilla groups, who have been attacking Israel from bases in Jordan.

The two-hour gun battle between Bedouin troops loyal to the king and members of several commando organizations left 24 civilians dead and 89 wounded, Hussein said. Commando spokesmen put the toll at 27 civilians and 13 guerrillas killed.

Hussein told a news conference that Monday's outburst of shooting by commando "victory contingents" was not spontaneous.

"There is a strong chance this group was acting according to a plan which did not originate in any Arab state," the monarch said. He said Israel "possibly" was behind the crisis, and said an investigation was under way.

Despite Hussein's assertions that "if I wanted a confrontation (with the commandoes) I would not be devious and strike from behind," a tense truce prevailed over the Jordanian capital.

Monday's violence came after Hussein had appealed to Arab commandoes to stop attacking Israel from bases in his country.

Long, Hard Climb

PRESIDENT-ELECT Richard Milhous Nixon said it himself, "You lose some, you win some."

In 1960 he lost a presidential election to the late President John F. Kennedy by a margin as narrow as that of his victory over Mr. Hubert Humphrey. Oddly enough, it was in the key state of Illinois on both occasions that the issue was decided.

Mr. Nixon was the Republican Party's "golden boy" when he rode to victory as vice-president under General Dwight Eisenhower swept the country, and the shock of defeat by Mr. Kennedy was the more severe because of his confidence. Even more shattering to his political hopes was his unsuccessful bid for the governorship of California in 1962.

That, said the wise men in politics, was the end of Mr. Nixon.

There followed a period of disruption in Republican ranks, with the controversial Senator Barry Goldwater taking the worst defeat in the history of the country when he challenged for the presidency. But Mr. Nixon emerged from that chaotic period as a mender of quarrels and a builder of saner policies.

With the nomination once again in his possession, he entered the campaign six months ago a heavy favorite. For Democratic Party rivalries and lack of confidence in President Lyndon Johnson had created the same sort of disorder which the Republicans had faced so short a time before.

It is to the everlasting credit of Mr. Humphrey that he was able to mount a serious challenge to his adversary. Given earlier momentum with the support of Senator Eugene McCarthy he might have overcome all the obvious handicaps and won one of the closest elections on record.

Mr. Nixon will assume his high office, if the election results are confirmed, at a time of tensions and anxieties at home and abroad. His is not an enviable responsibility. But he is a self-described pragmatist. "As facts change," he has said, "any intelligent man changes his approach to the problems."

If he will adjust to circumstances, showing a sympathetic willingness to compromise, while retaining that tenacity which has so far marked his career, he can justify the hopes of his electors. Few presidents have faced greater responsibilities, but for that very reason few have had the same opportunity for achievement of an honored role in history.

Time to Rally

THE COMBINED appeal of the Community Chest and Red Cross in the Greater Victoria district has gone beyond its nominal closing date with the goal still apparently far off. The need to extend the campaign is not abnormal. But collections reported to date amount to only about 60 per cent of the objective of $655,000. The pace is behind last year's to a marked degree.

It is hardly to be thought that many people are unaware of the many services rendered by the member agencies of the Community Chest and by the Red Cross, or of their value to the well-being of the community as a whole, and the distressed in particular. Nor is the campaign target formidable. It is tightly trimmed to the total of needs seen as essential, and the increase over the previous year while reflecting higher costs and greater services is also in proportion to a growing population with growing resources.

Thus we feel sure that the people of the Greater Victoria district will be no less generous this year than usual. But it is time to rally to the support of the United Appeal, to put in a personal effort where it has been lagging or lacking. The community is in over-time and the tally of success, in dollars, is distant.

Inexcusable Delay

IT IS NOT every day we agree with Mr. Tommy Douglas, the national leader of the New Democratic Party. But we do agree when he says that setting a February 10 date for the byelection in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands leaves the constituency without representation in the Commons for an inexcusably long time.

The seat was left vacant by the death of Mr. Colin Cameron on July 28. Mr. Douglas was nominated to succeed him in September and the Liberals chose Mr. Eric Winch on October 19 as their candidate. But still there was no announcement of a date for the byelection by Prime Minister Trudeau, causing The Ottawa Journal to remark that the prime minister "seems to feel none of the old courtesy that even in the heat of politics used to facilitate byelections for party leaders."

Mr. Trudeau, the Journal continued, "gave us all to believe he would cut a quick clean line through delays and red tape in our parliamentary system. It seems from his Senate appointments and his keeping Tommy Douglas out in the yard that a narrower partisanship is getting into his blood."

Now the prime minister has set the byelection date but has set it more than three months off, leaving the constituency without representation for more than six months in total. It is not the Just Society for the people of the riding.

But Mr. Douglas, if not the residents of Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, can take some wry pleasure from the delay. The prime minister apparently picks him as the byelection winner.

Lessons Needed

HON. George Hees: ... In view of the fact that it is now several months since Air Canada has had a president and the prime minister has not given any indication that an announcement is to be made in the foreseeable future, would the right hon. gentleman take the House into his confidence and tell us just what is the main problem that is making it impossible for the government to make up its mind in this connection?

Mr. Speaker: Order. I would not think this question as asked is in order.

Mr. Hees: Then may I ask another question, Mr. Speaker. In view of that, would the prime minister get in touch with Professor Marshall McLuhan and ask him whether he would include decision-making in the course he is presently giving the cabinet?

Phil! Are you fooling around with the electricity again??

Vietnamese Outlook

A Preference for the Risks of Peace

By MARK FRANKLAND

FOR the world outside Viet Nam the complete halt of American bombing, with the prospect of a ceasefire to follow, would go a long way to easing the tensions that the Viet Cong has created. But up to this point, the South Vietnamese government is just as nervous now as during the extremely uncomfortable periods of heavy fighting during the Communist offensive at the start of the year.

It is very easy for foreign critics of the war to ridicule this as the fear of men who have lived and profited from the war and who can survive only with the protection of half a million American soldiers. But the situation is, of course, far more complicated than that, and unless one tries to understand these complexities it is impossible to imagine what sort of settlement might be reached to let the Americans off the hook and allow the South Vietnamese to live once more a decent life.

It is abominably difficult to generalize about opinions and feelings in a country so fragmented as South Vietnam. President Thieu, in order to strengthen his hand against critics and rivals at home, against the Americans and the Communists, is bound to mask his own feelings about peace in a series of controlled tantrums at every stage in the negotiations from the bombing halt on.

But I think that none the less the single most important mood in Saigon today is that the risks of peace are preferable to the risks of war.

This is partly because people have at last been shocked into realizing that not even America could give them a permanent blank cheque for aid. The huge American presence in Vietnam, particularly since 1965, unfortunately allowed many South Vietnamese to believe that American interests would never come into conflict with those of the Saigon government. Today there is still talk from some old right-wing revolutionaries and tough Catholic emigres from the north of talking to the quisling Americans to stop fighting. But, in general, the perception that American policies can change goes together with an acceptance that Saigon's policies must change with them.

The risks of peace are preferable because they now look inevitable. But they are also preferable for more subtle reasons which till recently have seldom been discussed in public.

There is the belief that South Vietnam is a society in disarray, which the always difficult relationship with America has only made worse. Even if the war had not become so terribly destructive in the last year there would be the feeling that scarcely a single problem facing the country can be solved while the fighting continues. The farmer cannot know how best to farm, the student cannot see clearly how to study, the economist cannot begin to plan or the businessman make anything but the quickest and most ignoble profits until the war ends.

And yet for all but the very simple or those who are committed to the Communists, this very necessary peace looks dangerous. For it will clearly not be the sort of peace that follows after one side has won a victory, or both sides have declared a draw. It will be much more like two men who have fought an inconclusive duel with pistols and then continue the fight with fists, blunted at first, but later with the intention of drawing blood.

The Viet Cong—the National Liberation Front—will not give up its fight to capture the south, nor will Hanoi cease in one way or another to support it. This is the message of almost every sentence ever spoken or written by the Vietnamese Communist leaders, and they have surely now proved that they mean what they say.

The main concern for the South Vietnamese government is to make sure that rules for the combat are as advantageous as possible. This explains Saigon's refusal to talk directly to the Viet Cong in any negotiations. It also explains the arguments made privately by American officials to the South Vietnamese that if they play their cards right they will be able to defeat the Communists in a "peaceful" competition even if it means giving the Viet Cong some kind of recognition.

The essential thing, from the Americans' point of view, is that the Saigon government (which really means President Thieu) should remain in place when the "peace" begins. This seems to be the irreducible requirement for saving American dignity and preserving what has no hope of making the sort of military progress on which they believe political success depends, without a massive North Vietnamese presence.

As things stand at the moment in South Vietnam the Communist military position is, of course, not strong enough for them to dictate their political terms. It even seems that Hanoi and the NLF no longer themselves seriously hope for the sort of coalition government in the South which the Tet offensive was supposed to produce.

The Communists have a special problem in explaining to their followers in the Viet Cong why the war may have to stop so far short of the promised total victory. The Hanoi politburo may well have reached the decision to negotiate because they see no hope of military progress as things stand, and believe that the international and American political climate offers the best foreseeable chance to get the American troops out of the south on tolerable terms.

But they are presenting the Viet Cong with a pretty rough choice. A ceasefire could leave the NLF in control of quite large parts of the countryside, which, if no further political agreement were reached, they might find very difficult to expand. It seems much more likely that the Communists have their own plan for inserting the Viet Cong into the political life of the south in a way not too different from that imagined by the Americans. This would mean a tremendous switch for the NLF — psychologically, intellectually and in organization. The Vietnamese Communists have done this sort of thing before when fighting the French, but this time it will be harder than ever. Among other things, they will have to produce their own public Southern leader, for Uncle Ho cannot do this job, the titular head of the NLF is too lightweight, and the real Communist leader of the Viet Cong is a mystery man whose personality is buried under a pile of aliases.

The Vietnam peace would be much more simple to organize and control if either side's propaganda about their support among the people was correct. The trouble is that the war has brutalized both sides. Urgent military and political needs have made coercion more and more necessary and today there is certainly nothing like an enthusiastic majority ready to go to the polls, still less take to the streets, either for President Thieu or the Liberation Front. The peace will certainly see new coercion as well as the overthrown of parliamentary democracy in the country of its birth.

Events inside Greece and in the wider context of the Balkans and the Mediterranean have since combined to make the U.S. stance on military aid increasingly untenable on grounds of logic.

At home, the Greek government is able to assert without danger of contradiction that Greece has never been so loyal and enthusiastic a member of Western alliances as it has become under the administration of retired Col. George Papadopoulos.

Spreading Communist infection of the legislature and state services has been eliminated, as has the old possibility of an elected government being tempted into neutralist policies as a means of retaining power.

With no political repercussions to be feared, the government was able to go ahead and establish a North Atlantic Treaty Organization missile training base on the island of Crete — a plan thwarted by noisy left-wing protest when first mooted several years ago.

Even the old quarrel with Turkey, the other key Western nation in the southeast European defence scheme, gave way to increasingly friendly relations after a bad war scare just a year ago.

Additionally, the talk of "resistance movements" being formed in Greece has proved a myth cultivated by dispossessed politicians in exile. The Papadopoulos government is not only in absolute control of the country but was able to win an overwhelming vote for its new constitution in a more or less free poll in September.

Events beyond the Greek borders also increased the pressure on Washington to abandon its old posture on military assistance.

The increasing Soviet naval presence in the Mediterranean, and the Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia, with the implied threat to Romania and Yugoslavia, have made Greece's role in NATO still more obviously vital. Greece, after all, shares a common frontier with Yugoslavia.

There is also the longer-term question of Washington's failure thus far to negotiate acceptable terms with Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government for renewal of the treaty covering U.S. bases in Spain.

There seems little reason to doubt that such facilities would, if requested, be made available here.

It has, in short, become evident that the Greek government is here to stay, and that, so long as it stays, Greek loyalty to the West is assured as never before.

A final consideration, now beyond denial by even the most relentless liberal theorists, is that the "selective" embargo on heavy military equipment imposed by Washington was having no effect at all as a means of pressuring the Athens government to resume the democratic process at a pace faster than is considered wise or expedient here.

The Papadopoulos administration, in fact, pretends to a majestic indifference about whether military equipment is supplied or not. The Greek people were never told that it was suspended, and thus have not been told now that it has been resumed.

While the U.S. state department has assured that it will "continue to press" for restoration of parliamentary government in Greece, the decision to send aircraft and ships implies that first Greece is now being put first. And first of all is Western solidarity in the face of Soviet expansion.

Ottawa Offbeat

Firm Under Pressure

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

WHETHER you were for or against him on his position in the aid-for-Biafra issue, you must give Prime Minister Trudeau this: his was a firm, solid-as-a-rock stand. And he has budged not an inch.

The pressure was immense. Bringing it to bear, day after unrelenting day was the Opposition, united for once, in a Conservative-New Democratic front.

But also turning on the heat were numerous, but by no means all Canadian churchmen, student activists, some academics and such odd sorts as the Montreal grandmother who fasted for a week and slept in the cold stone portico of the East Block.

As together they turned the screws on the prime minister, he began feeling some pain, and in what he was to immediately admit was a fit of temper, he called some of them "bleeding hearts," and "pious Canadians," and "world-savers."

He even suggested and you could almost hear the silent cheers of the great majority of non-activist Canadians — that if it came to "world-saving," there were places here at home where it might be a good idea to begin.

Then in that confrontation at Halifax with Dalhousie University students picketing for Biafra, he early told them "put your money where your mouth is, and join the Red Cross."

This is a new, tough kind of prime minister, infinitely tougher than Lester Pearson who always found it so easy to knuckle under to pressure and say yes, and tougher even than John Diefenbaker who was no softie.

After standing off the students, the taxpayers gave it to him — the way he wanted to hear it — at the Halifax "talk-in," with a series of questions as to why there had to be all that worrying about Biafra, television making an international figure of him.

Perhaps that was in the prime minister's mind, "Danny the Red" and those students-for-Biafra, when he remarked that it was essential for the survival of government — by Parliament — that politicians "communicate" directly — and more effectively — with the taxpayers.

For to let the role of "communication" go by default exclusively to press, radio and television — especially TV — would be to open the way for "something cold, mass democratic suggestion that not-racy and mob rule," he warned.

U.S. Arms for Greece

NATO Role Vital

By VICTOR F. WALKER from Athens

THE U.S. decision to resume full-scale military assistance to Greece marks Washington's third major concession in 18 months to realpolitik in this corner of the world.

When the army seized power here in April last year, the United States delayed recognition of the new government not only until its control of the entire country became evident, but also until King Constantine had given his assent to its members — at least to the extent of being photographed with them.

Last December, when Constantine tried and failed to overthrow the government and then fled to Italy, U.S. diplomats refrained for almost a month from any contact with Greek government services, before coming to terms with the new setup of a registry.

Now Greece is to receive heavy military equipment from the United States again — for the first time since the army takeover. Initially it will get two minesweepers and from 20 to 30 jet fighter aircraft; expectation is that tanks and heavy artillery will soon follow.

Shipment of all but spare parts, light weapons and ammunition was suspended three weeks after the army coup, as a gesture of U.S. displeasure at the overthrow of parliamentary democracy in the country of its birth.

Events inside Greece and in the wider context of the Balkans and the Mediterranean have since combined to make the U.S. stance on military aid increasingly untenable on grounds of logic.

At home, the Greek government is able to assert without danger of contradiction that Greece has never been so loyal and enthusiastic a member of Western alliances as it has become under the administration of retired Col. George Papadopoulos.

A final consideration, now beyond denial by even the most relentless liberal theorists, is that the "selective" embargo on heavy military equipment imposed by Washington was having no effect at all as a means of pressuring the Athens government to resume the democratic process at a pace faster than is considered wise or expedient here.

The Papadopoulos administration, in fact, pretends to a majestic indifference about whether military equipment is supplied or not. The Greek people were never told that it was suspended, and thus have not been told now that it has been resumed.

While the U.S. state department has assured that it will "continue to press" for restoration of parliamentary government in Greece, the decision to send aircraft and ships implies that first Greece is now being put first. And first of all is Western solidarity in the face of Soviet expansion.

Nixon Policies: Armed Might, Defence of Political Centre

By ROBERT J. DONOVAN, from New York

The sum and substance of a Nixon Administration will be the defence of the political centre in America against assault from the Right and the Left. The very cornerstone of Richard Nixon's forthcoming presidency was best defined by the victorious candidate himself recently in these words: "America needs to hear the vital voices of the broad and vital centre. The centre is under savage attack. It must be held at all costs."

Holding it at all costs will be the test on which the new Administration will thrive or else collapse like the Johnson Administration. In dealing with this task Nixon will be far more flexible, if need be, than his campaign speeches may have suggested.

To make the centre secure requires a period of relative stability. To obtain it he will move swiftly to end the demoralizing Vietnam war through the Paris negotiations.

He will give the lead to a nationwide crackdown on crime, disorder and extreme forms of dissent. He will endeavor to put the economy on an even keel. And he will initiate new types of programs for improving conditions in the cities.

Success in each of these areas will be extremely difficult. Barring some crisis at home or abroad that might force him to move against his will, the changes in direction under the Nixon Administration will for the most part come gradually and in moderate doses.

The most striking exception may be the case of Vietnam. For if negotiations are sputtering when he enters the White House he intends to act boldly to hold down the fighting, strengthen the armed forces of South Vietnam and press ahead with the Paris talks.

A readiness to face up to difficult concessions appears to be the key to his peace policy.

He knows he cannot make strides at home until he gets rid of the burden of the war. He has promised to end the war.

His associates say he is aware that in order to do so he may have to make unpopular concessions that only a new president and only one who, like himself, feels safe against charges of being "soft on Communism" would risk making.

Apart from Vietnam, appearances will start changing around the inauguration on Jan. 20. The tone will be more orderly, more efficient, more traditional. A good deal more grim perhaps.

Also, of course, there will be a most sweeping change in the people at the top. Who knows but what Thomas E. Dewey will play an important role? Or that C. Douglas Dillon will be secretary of state? Or Gov. Nelson Rockefeller secretary of defence, even though Nixon has been cautioned by a mutual friend that Rockefeller might try to upstage him.

Televised bustle will be the order of the first 100 days to demonstrate that the new president has grasped the reins firmly. Gestures of goodwill to all and showpiece tokens of greater things to come will abound.

The rhetoric will change from the lingo of the New Deal and the Great Society to the serious professionalism of Nixon and his bright young men.

Pablo Casals will not play the cello in the East Room, but Nixon's friend, the Rev. Billy Graham, will be welcomed and dined.

Because of the ghastly budget problems facing her husband, Mrs. Nixon will spotlight Mrs. Johnson's beautification program. As a former school teacher she will do ever so many things about education instead.

On urgent invitation world leaders will come streaming in. At the same time the new president, having seen his predecessor mangled by the intellectuals, will set out to show that, in his fashion, he is as hospitable to them as President Kennedy was.

As his campaign associates have been doing this fall, his aides will assure them that Nixon himself is an intellectual and that consequently the Nixon Administration is just the place for PhDs, albeit not of the bearded, draft card-burning variety.

Most decidedly, there will be no resident academic in the White House, like Arthur Schlesinger during the Kennedy days and Prof. Eric Goldman and John P. Roche in the Johnson Administration.

Nixon has not overlooked how successfully the Kennedys influenced opinion by making some things "in" and others "out."

When he moves into the White House, faith in the efficacy of business and voluntary organizations in easing ghetto problems will be in.

Riots, murder, grand larceny and breaking into college presidents' liquor cabinets will be out.

No one ever arrived in the White House more determined to put the country on a new track than did Nixon's old chief, Dwight Eisenhower, 16 years ago. No one ever entered upon the presidency more highly resolved to get the country moving again than John F. Kennedy did eight years ago.

As with most presidents, however, each of them found his course of action restricted by the stream of history, by the temper of the times as reflected in Congress particularly and by unforeseen events. So will it be with Richard Nixon.

Only rarely, as in 1933 when Franklin D. Roosevelt saw the country disintegrating in the depression, is there a sharp and sudden break in the continuity of foreign and domestic programs with a change in administrations.

Rather, change evolves over the years; that is what is in prospect in the Nixon Administration, if relative peace at home and abroad prevails.

At the outset, Nixon's domestic policies will bear familiar conservative hallmarks: A pervasive cautiousness. Emphasis on free enterprise and the return of certain powers to state and local governments. A reliance on the middle class, white and black. Military preparedness and a strengthening of the police to repress crime and disorder.

Also a budget at least nearly in balance. A fight against inflation. A degree of protectionism (for steel and textiles, notably). Concentrations on efficiency. Finally, men of moderate views to carry out these policies.

In practice, however, Nixon will be less preoccupied with old differences between liberalism and conservatism than in doing whatever it may take to give the country a period of stability.

The old quarrels between management and labor, between Democrat and Republican, between liberal and conservative must be put on the back burner until we decided together if society itself is going to survive," the president-elect said recently.

This was simply another way of enunciating the theme of holding the centre.

If it can be done through recourse to private enterprise, voluntary organizations and the energies of individual volunteers, that is the way Nixon would like it. That is the route he will try after taking office.

But if this route proves too slow and leads only to worse trouble in the land, Nixon will turn to federal funding as sure as the day is long. In moments of private candor his advisers grant as much.

It is not for nothing that Nixon calls himself a pragmatist.

Even while he is trying the more conservative route he will also ask Congress for more money for some of the Great Society programs to keep peace in the cities.

Troubles around the world pose a fine challenge to Nixon's conduct of foreign affairs.

Basically, he will continue long-standing American policies of resistance to Soviet and Chinese expansion; of close ties with Western Europe; of defence of West Berlin; of support to the non-communist nations of Asia, and of seeking reduced tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union.

In foreign policy, therefore, the outlook for the Nixon administration is this:

● Within the first 100 days an announcement of preparations for talks with the Western Allies to pave the way for a series of summit meetings with Soviet leaders.

● Regardless of the final peace terms in Vietnam, a formidable U.S. military presence in the Western Pacific.

● A turning away, however, from new commitments and alliances, especially in Asia, Africa and Latin America, that might involve the United States in minor wars. "Other nations must recognize that the role of the United States as a world policeman is likely to be limited in the future," Nixon says.

● U.S. assistance to nations such as Japan, India, Thailand, South Vietnam, South Korea, Taiwan, Malaysia, Australia and New Zealand, which individually and collectively could exert a restraining influence against Chinese expansion.

● Sufficient U.S. aid to Israel, including the sale of Phantom F-4 jets, if necessary, to enable the Israelis to maintain military superiority over the Arabs. This is essential, Nixon believes, lest Arab states be tempted to seek revenge for their defeat in the six-day war in 1967 and thereby plunge the Middle East into flames.

● A recommendation by Nixon to the new Senate that it ratify the treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons.

Reflecting Dulles' influence, as he has over the years, Nixon is ready to foot the bill — no small one either — for increased strategic military power so that he can, as he repeatedly says, "negotiate from strength."

As Nixon sees it, the Soviet Union and China have inherently aggressive tendencies, whereas the United States is completely "defensive" and without ambitions of conquest.

But this is all the more reason, he insists, why the United States must retain over-all military superiority.

Nixon is ready for hard bargaining with the Kremlin. But threats are out. If there is to be bargaining, Nixon must be ready to give as well as take. It may require all of his patented anti-communism to make some of the concessions palatable at home.

A highly responsible and experienced person among his advisers recently gave this reporter his own opinion about the kind of concessions Nixon might offer in return for Soviet accommodation.

He mentioned abandoning the goal of German reunification, recognition of the Communist East German government, assenting to some of the post war border changes in Eastern Europe and offering new guarantees against giving nuclear weapons to West Germany.

This is high-voltage stuff. If Nixon is thinking in terms of concessions of this magnitude, even though not of these particular concessions, the summit meetings high on his agenda will be significant affairs.

Road Down or Road Out

Vital Decision On Vietnam

Faces Nixon Now

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Washington
Special to The Colonist

Recent events in Vietnam spell out what will probably be the first hard decision for Richard Nixon. He will have to set priorities as between the road down and the road out.

The decision is intrinsically difficult for it involves getting right the balance of political and military emphasis that has baffled three past presidents. Moreover, the choice will have to be made, perhaps in the next few days, with little more than a dim awareness of what is at stake.

The road out is the road to a political settlement in South Vietnam. It points toward an agreement between the Saigon authorities and the chief insurgents grouped under the National Liberation Front.

It is now being blocked by the refusal of the Saigon government to participate with representatives of the Front in the Paris peace talks. And it is an exceedingly difficult road to travel.

But not only will the Saigon government have to be persuaded to sit down with its deadly enemies. It will also have to concede them at least a chance to come to power by peaceful means. Still, difficult as this road may be, it alone offers a way toward an end of the basic grievances which underlie the war.

The road down features a diminution of the fighting by U.S. troops—de-Americanization. It is almost entirely military in its efforts and it is very fetching—the more so as a part of the tough terrain has already been covered.

Three Steps Taken

A first step took place after the Tet offensive, when the Administration refused to go along with the request of the American command in Saigon for a massive troop increase. A second step took place with the partial bombing halt of March 31. A third step was the total bombing halt of last week.

Future steps in this direction are not difficult to imagine. Both sides would steadily diminish their military efforts in South Vietnam and adjoining territories. There would follow a withdrawal from South Vietnam by American and, presumably, North Vietnamese units.

In the end, South Vietnam would be where it was before the American buildup—with a small-scale fight for power going on mainly between local forces.

Such an outcome can be made to look just dandy. It seems to avoid all the political concessions that would be so hard to make. It seems to validate those who supported the war all along as an appropriate American military response to a "serious threat to the national security."

The trouble is that the road down presupposes, first, that North Vietnam is now so bloodied that it has lost its stomach for the fight, and second, that the South Vietnamese army is strong enough, and its government coherent enough, to resist any local pressure that can be mounted.

In fact, both of these suppositions have repeatedly been proven wrong in the past. And thus there is a distinct danger that, without a political settlement, a lull would be followed by a resumption of the war in conditions that would yield powerful internal pressure for American military actions likely to threaten an even larger conflict.

Conflict of Interest

In this situation there crops up a distinct conflict of interest between the present and the next Administration. President Johnson's interest is to fudge the decision, going ahead with the military de-escalation while hoping the Saigon government will eventually enter the talks.

In that way bruising encounters with Saigon are avoided, and the American public is nursed along by visible evidence that he is ending the war.

The interest of the new President is different. As long as the impression build in the U.S. and in Saigon that the war is being wound down without political concessions the harder it will become to make the concessions that are required. Each step taken along the road down now makes it less and less easy later on to take the road out.

Thus Nixon has a critical choice to make on Vietnam in the next few days. If he emphasizes the road out, he can force both Washington and Saigon to come to grips with the basic political realities of a political settlement.

But if he lets the moment pass, if he gives currency to the illusion that a safe peace is possible without concessions, he makes himself a prisoner of events and allows one of his major choices to become hostage to fortune.

For the basic fact is that in the long run it is the United States which most requires an exit visa in Vietnam. It is the U.S. which can least afford a ragged ending. It is the U.S. above all others which will gain from a political settlement that terminates once and for all a war that has brought to the American people so much sorrow.

Nigeria Tries to Match Biafrans in Image War

Hercules Shelving Indefinite

SANTA ISABEL (CP) — Two Scandinavians working on the Biafra relief operation were wounded early Wednesday when the Uli-Ihiala airport was bombed and strafed by a federal Nigerian aircraft.

The attack raised immediate questions about the future of international mercy flights into secessionist Biafra.

A Canadian Hercules transport plane taking part in Red Cross relief operations out of Santa Isabel was grounded indefinitely. Maj. Paul Hope of Perth, Ont., commander of the Canadian detachment here, said the aircraft would remain grounded until operational safety had reached an acceptable level.

Report Soon

Maj. Hope said he would report to Ottawa later Wednesday. Santa Isabel is the base of operations for Red Cross relief planes flying into food-short Biafra. It is situated on the island of Fernando Po, part of the new state of equatorial Guinea.

Those injured were reported to be the co-pilot of a Caritas international relief plane operating into Biafra from the Portuguese island of Sao Tome, and an international Red Cross worker based in Biafra. Further identification was not immediately available.

The victims were evacuated by aircraft to Santa Isabel.

Blood Needed

One was reported suffering from severe shrapnel wounds. Canadian and other relief detachments here were being canvassed for blood donations.

The attack was reported to have been carried out under bright moonlight by a single Russian-built MIG fighter firing both machineguns and rockets. The two were reported to have been standing on the apron of the airport while the Caritas plane was being unloaded.

An undetermined number of Biafrans were reported injured in the attack. Reports that two or more people were killed could not be confirmed immediately. Some damage was said to have been done to the relief aircraft.

Land Assault

A Canadian Hercules engaged in the Biafra relief operation did not fly Tuesday night because of a propeller malfunction which occurred the previous night. Before Wednesday's incident, it was expected to be out of action for at least another night.

The strike at Uli-Ihiala, through which beleaguered Biafra gets food and weapons, coincided with reports of a renewed federal land offensive against secessionists.

Last week, the federal Nigerian government announced it had reached agreement with the Red Cross on safe passage of Red Cross mercy flights into Biafra. However, the agreement apparently did not cover aircraft on the ground.

Morals Class Issue

GRENOBLE, France (UPI) — Tension between French students and education authorities grew Wednesday as Grenoble university students occupied their science faculty building and Marseille high school students went on strike. Grenoble students said they were seeking to show nothing had changed, despite the May-June upheaval that nearly brought down President Charles de Gaulle's government and brought about reform programs designed to modernize the country's antiquated educational system.

STREETWALKERS — In Marseille, students took over an administration decision to discipline a classmate involved in debates over various issues including the presence of streetwalkers outside one of the city's high schools.

"We are accused of putting the morality of the school in danger," said one student. "It is certainly not us who is tolerating the presence of hotels frequented by streetwalkers in streets next to the establishment."

Observers here agree that federal Nigeria's public relations system has been lamentably bad, especially in comparison with the smooth-working publicity machine operating for the secessionist regime in Biafra.

Now, however, the picture is changing, says Anthony Enahoro, the Lagos government's commissioner of information. "We are satisfied that we have turned the corner," said Enahoro in an interview. "From studying the overseas press we believe that we have caught up with them (the Biafrans) ... after some hard work."

MINISTER'S POST

Enahoro's position in the federal military government is equivalent to that of minister in a country such as Canada.

He claimed Biafra has spent $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 in a publicity campaign to tell its story to the world.

The key part of that story is that the federal government is out to annihilate the Ibo race through a policy of genocide. The federal government emphatically denies this.

MORE NEEDED

However, it has begun to realize that convincing the world requires more than just a passive rejection of the Biafran allegations — a fact in itself that testifies to the effective head start gained by the secessionists in the propaganda war.

Enahoro acknowledged that Markpress, the Geneva-based organization which handles the Biafran government's public relations and information program abroad — is "one of the best in the business."

"We haven't quite matched this,"

VAST SUMS

He also said the federal government does not have vast sums of money to spend on improving its "image."

"We have priorities — schools, keeping our foreign embassies going. ... The normal day-to-day needs of a government still have to be met."

"We couldn't arrest all development in the country just because of this war."

The federal government is sending some of its top-level people abroad to talk to high-level people of other countries — the ones who count — and impart the Nigerian side of the civil war story.

TRIPS ABROAD

The Biafrans have been doing this all along, he says while federal leaders remained desk-bound.

When I talked to him, Enahoro had just returned from a trip to France and Ireland. External Affairs Commissioner Okot Arikpo was presenting his government's side of the case at the United Nations, and Communications Commissioner Aminu Kano had just left for West Germany, the U.S. and possibly other countries.

FROM SCRATCH

Internally, the federal government is trying hard to foster a greater sense of unity and common interest among the diverse tribes and the 12 states that make up the Nigerian federation.

This program has had to start virtually from scratch since, traditionally the federal ministry of information had little impact among the people. Except in the field of broadcasting, information services were chiefly the responsibility of the different states.

The task is not easy. There still is considerable discussion in Nigeria as to just what kind of political structure would be best for this country of 85,000,000 persons.

STILL TROUBLED

Nigeria, like Canada, is having difficulty finding its personality and achieving a sense of identity. As the commissioner of information puts it:

"There is no amalgam that is distinctly Nigerian. Until we have an 'image' it is hard to try to project to people just what our 'vision' for Nigeria is."

Recipe of the Week

Dark Christmas Cake

Cream $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of butter and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup margarine. Add 1 cup of sugar. Beat until fluffy. Beat 6 egg yolks and add to cream mixture. Stir well. Sift 2 cups of flour, measure, and set aside $\frac{1}{2}$ cup. Sift remaining $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour with 1 tsp. salt, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. mace, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. allspice, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. cloves, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. cinnamon and $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. nutmeg into creamed mixture, mix well. Add $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. vanilla, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. lemon extract, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of sherry or cider. Combine $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups currants, $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups seedless raisins, $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. of candied cherries cut in half, $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. of citron, thinly sliced, $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. of candied pineapple, $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. candied orange peel, $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. candied lemon peel thinly sliced, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of halved blanched almonds, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of chopped walnuts, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of chopped pecans with the $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of flour, add to cake batter and mix. Beat the 6 egg whites until stiff; fold into cake batter and mix well. Spoon into pan or pans; bake. Store. Makes 5 lbs. Approx. baking time: 5 lbs., 9" spring form pan, 300 degrees, for 3 hours. Test for doneness 15 to 30 minutes before the suggested baking time has elapsed. The cake is done when a toothpick inserted in centre comes out clean.

Recipe of the Week:

Creole Pot Roast

Set out a Dutch oven or a heavy sauce pot having a tight-fitting cover. Mix a finely chopped onion with 1 clove garlic, finely minced or crushed in garlic press; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon pepper; 1/4 teaspoon thyme; 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper. Set this seasoning mixture aside. Wipe a 3 to 4 lb. pot roast of beef (chuck, blade, round, or rump) with a clean, damp cloth. All over surface of meat, cut slits several inches apart. Cut cross-wise into thin strips 3 slices of pot roast and set aside. Heat 1/2 cup butter or margarine in the Dutch oven over low heat. Slice 2 onions and add to heated fat; cook until lightly browned. Place onion slices on top of meat and put meat into Dutch oven. Cover and slowly brown meat. Wash 3 carrots, 1 turnip and cut into small pieces. Finely chop 3 onions. When browning second side of meat add vegetables to Dutch oven with 2 tins, finely chopped parsley and 1 crushed bay leaf. While meat is browning turn vegetables several times. Add 1/2 cup sherry or Madeira wine when meat is well browned. Cover tightly and cook slowly over low heat about 3 hours or until tender. Add more wine or water during cooking period if necessary. At all times liquid surrounding meat should be simmering, not boiling. Remove the meat from liquid when tender. Strain the liquid and use for gravy. Serve Daube cutting meat into thin slices across grain of meat. Serves 6 to 8 people.

Czechs Burn Flags

mated 4,000 students assembled outside the city's national theatre where the Russian anniversary was being marked with a performance of Gounod's opera Romeo and Juliet.

UPI correspondent Robert San-Pierre reported long-haired boy students and girls in short skirts pulled down Crimson hammer and sickle flags of the Soviet Union from poles on Hveslavov Square in front of the Bratislava theatre. They kicked the flags across the square and set them afire to the applause and cheers of other youthful demonstrators.

BIRTHDAY SYMBOL

The tattered ends of many of the flags were tied around the flagpoles. The banners had been hoisted on orders of the ministry of the interior to honor the birth of the world's first communist regime.

Russian troops were seen on some streets in Bratislava in jeeps but they made no move to stop the demonstrators. Czechoslovak police carrying billy clubs were reported by Slovak bystanders to have arrested two students, but the arrests could not be confirmed.

Similar demonstrations had erupted in Prague and Bratislava last month during the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the Czechoslovak republic.

Czechoslovak troops and policemen in Prague sealed off a 15-block area around the national theatre to prevent trouble during the performance of the Russian ballet, which was attended by Knetsov and Chervonenko.

The young people in Bratislava, 190 miles southeast of Prague near the Austrian border, milled around in front of the theatre. They pointed to a huge Soviet flag hanging from a window and shouted "down with the flag."

Several uniformed theatre ushers walked out onto the theatre balcony and removed the Russian flag. The demonstrators applauded. Other youths ripped a huge Soviet flag from a window of a building across the street, and more cheers filled the night.

In Prague, barricades were thrown up across all bridges, streets and sidewalks leading to the national theatre which was the scene of anti-Soviet demonstrations last month.

Students at Charles University in Prague called upon their colleagues to wear black mourning armbands and stage sit-down demonstrations on the anniversary. University authorities warned that students who marched in anti-Soviet parades would be expelled.

Land Bank

unions that have never even heard of the scheme.

"The Sacred land bank is bankrupt."

Mr. Williams said there was no registered company under the name Thomas C. Mills and Associates, said by the government to be financial advisers to the co-operative, and premises formerly occupied by this company now are vacated and for rent. No Ammore Home Builders Co-operative has been registered.

FIVE CHECKED

A check with the five unions said to be involved in the co-operative—United Electrical Workers, Radio and Machine Workers, Amalgamated Transit Union, Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, Brewery and Soft Drink Workers, Marine Workers and Boilermakers—showed none was committed to the scheme, he said.

Mr. Williams said it was apparent the government had chosen a "promotional stunt" to cover up its complete inactivity in the housing field.

KEY PERSONS

"We in the opposition hate to see the land bank idea discredited—it was the NDP that first proposed it a year and a half ago—by bungling at the cabinet level. But that is exactly what has happened. It is nothing short of incredible that two key cabinet ministers should not have checked into the background of the promoter or whether trade unions were in fact involved and had funds available."

The government had an obligation to embark on a proper land bank scheme using provincial lands at several other locations on the Lower Mainland, he said.

THE LOSERS

Mr. Williams added: "The losers are the people who simply want a place to build a house. The people who need houses are obviously not going to get anything out of the latest proposal because of the bungling of two senior ministers. The land bank is bankrupt before it is in business."

In announcing the scheme a couple of weeks ago, Mr. Campbell said the government entered the "lease-to-purchase" agreement for the initial 50 acres of 1000 property on the understanding that if the co-operative did not perform as it claimed it would, the deal was off.

Testing Period Likely for Stocks

Stock markets are likely to go through a testing time in the next few sessions, after the initial satisfaction that the U.S. election had not resulted in a stalemate wears off and the candidate Wall Street wanted was declared the winner.

However, the market has had a long rise, and the election has not really solved any of the major problems that exist in the U.S. (or the Canadian) economy.

Brokers feel that year-end selling for tax losses may not be high this year, but that they could temporarily soften the market. On the longer run, however, it is anticipated the huge flow of mutual fund money will find its way into the market, even if there has been a pre-election lull in this activity.

CANADIAN STOCKS

Canadian stocks have recently been showing a more independent trend than usual and the unyielding attitude taken by Finance Minister Benson to the Oliver Twistism of the provinces has been taken this week as an encouraging sign.

Selective buying Wednesday brought some big gains to individual Canadian stocks but there were soft spots as well as temper enthusiasm.

TRAFFIC VICTIM

A former manager of Imperial Life Assurance Co.'s Victoria office, George Clinton, was killed in a traffic accident in Toronto Tuesday evening.

Clinton, manager in Victoria until 1962, had since served as his company's superintendent of agencies at Imperial's Toronto headquarters.

The accident happened just after Clinton had stepped out of a colleague's car in which he was being driven home from the office. He was hit while using a pedestrian crossing, and died before reaching hospital.

RCMP MEMBER

Clinton was raised at Armstrong, B.C., and became a member of the RCMP stationed at Kimberley, before joining Imperial Life. He operated for some time out of the Penticton office of that company before Shareholders of Western Broadcasting Co. Ltd. have been told by president Frank Griffiths the company plans to increase its holdings in British Columbia Television Broadcasting System to 33 per cent. It presently holds 17 per cent of the shares in the company that operates channels 6 and 8.

The deal requires the approval of the Canadian Radio-

Television Commission, which last June rejected an application by Selkirk Holdings, Famous Players Canadian and Saturna Properties to buy all the shares of the television company. Saturna is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Western Broadcasting.

In the six months ended Sept. 30, Western Broadcasting's net earnings were $388,938 (44.1 cents) compared with $344,824 (39.1 cents) in the corresponding period of 1967.

SHULLY MAKES BID

Shully's Industries of Toronto, a manufacturer and distributor of steel and aluminum products, has agreed in principle to acquire a private company in the aluminum fabricating business in exchange for Shully's treasury shares and warrants.

The name of the company was not disclosed.

PARTNER ACQUIRED

Facs Ltd., a recently-formed public company, has announced the acquisition for an undisclosed sum of the shares of Simplified Business Services of Canada.

Earnings Rise For Patino

TORONTO (CP) — Net earnings of Patino Mining Corp. for the nine months ended Sept. 30, jumped to $2,264,000 (52 cents) from $1,716,000 (40 cents) for the similar period in 1967, the company said Monday.

Revenue for the period was $11,556,000 of which metal sales were $10,381,000. In the 1967 period, revenue was $9,983,000 and metal sales $8,988,000.

Expenses for the nine months were $7,269,000, compared with $6,812,000 in 1967.

George E. Richardson of Winnipeg, president of James Richardson and Sons Ltd., Monday was elected a director of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

NORANDA TO SPLIT

A split of two-for-one in the stock of Noranda Mines helped put the shares of that company at a new high in Wednesday's trading on the Toronto and Montreal stock exchange.

Not only are the shares to be split but Noranda directors have declared an increased dividend

PLASTICS ASK HELP

A public hearing to review import duties on plastics and polyethylene products has been called for Jan. 13 on a request from Finance Minister Benson.

Canadian producers want the tariff raised from the 7 1/4 per cent recommended last year for imports from Commonwealth and most favored nations to 10 per cent. The increase is sought because of a change in the world supply and demand, and the need to build bigger plants to get more efficient production.

STEELS, BANKS FAVORED

Private investors are always interested in knowing what the professional managers of the mutual funds are doing.

Pacific Funds, managed in Vancouver, has informed shareholders it is increasing the percentage of its portfolio into bank and steel shares.

The plan is to increase each group to 10 per cent of the whole fund. Bank profits they consider to be rising fast as a result of greater freedom allowed by the 1967 Bank Act, and they also believe the new tax on hidden reserves will not harm holders of bank shares.

Airline Failure British Shocker

LONDON (UPI) — British Eagle Airlines announced Wednesday it will stop operations Friday, putting about 2,200 employees out of work.

A spokesman for the firm, which was one of Britain's leading independent air services, said the staff would be paid off Friday.

No major efforts has been made to help employees find other jobs, the spokesman said.

"because this whole thing came up quite suddenly."

He added efforts would be made to find jobs for company staff in the next few days and it was conceivable some employees would be paid by a liquidator who has not yet been appointed.

A statement issued by the company said efforts to re-finance British Eagle International Airlines Ltd. and British Eagle Aviation Ltd. had failed and directors decided the company could not absorb further losses.

Devaluation, a 50 travel allowance for Britons, general decline in travel and a drop in the number of tours and charter flights, added to increasing costs financially undermined the firm, the statement said.

Directors said all staff had been informed service would end as its planes returned to London and Liverpool from their regular flights.

The British Airline Pilots Association, which was negotiating a contract with British Eagle, said it has no hint of the airline's "extreme course of action."

"The news of the British Eagle liquidation came as a complete shock to British Eagle's 190 pilots," the labor group said.

Trips Doubled Down Under

OTTAWA (CP) — Australia's Qantas Airways Ltd., has been given approval for weekly flights between Sydney and Vancouver.

The air transport committee of the Canadian Transport Commission announced approval arranged under a deal which also permits Canadian Pacific Airlines to make a round trip each week between the two cities. Previously the two lines made trips every two weeks.

Brewer Eyes Grand Forks

GRAND FORKS (CP) — A study is under way to determine the feasibility of building a brewery here, the president of Tartan Brewery said.

Civic Medals for Junior Golfers

Mayor Hugh Stephen, acting on behalf of the Victoria Inter-Municipal Committee, presents civic medals to Dave Mick (left) and Cec Ferguson of the Gorge Vale Golf Club in recognition of their participation on the B.C. Junior team which won the Canadian Inter-provincial team championship at Three Rivers, Que., this year. The presentation was made in the mayor's office with provincial and district golf officials attending.

Annual Homecoming At Oak Bay Friday

A powerful lineup of graduates is expected to give Oak Bay High School teams a tough time Friday when the school completes homecoming week with nine games followed by the annual dance from 10 p.m. to midnight.

Powell River Leads Port Alberni Close

NANAIMO—Powell River and Port Alberni are the early leaders in the Pacific Coast Amateur Hockey League, and indications after nine games are that they could wage a season-long battle for top spot.

Port Alberni leads with eight points from five games but Powell River, with a game in hand and only two points behind, shows a better offence and defence record.

LEADS SCORERS
Selby Statz of Port Alberni is the leading scorer with eight goals and five assists for the four games he has played. Teammate Paul Blais shares second place in the individual point race with Rob Carmen of Powell River, Blais with two goals and six assists and Carmen with four goals and four assists.

Grocers Top CYO Saints

VICTORIA — IGA Grocers, led by Steve Woods and Don Redmond with 12 points each, won their opening game in the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League Wednesday, downing winless CYO Saints, 87-60. Wayne Miller led the losers with 15 points.

Stampeders Planning To Insert Wrinkles

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary not only in their offensive backfield but on defence too," Williams said. "They have good personnel and we'll have to be at our best if we hope to win."

In that Edmonton backfield are quarterback Charlie Fulton and halfbacks Jim Thomas and Thernus Butler.

Fulton, who can also fill in as a halfback, ran for 297 yards with most of it coming against Calgary. Thomas was third among WFC rushers with 881 yards, while Butler rumbled for 281 yards and four touchdowns in less than half a season.

But they'll have to crack the strongest defence in the league. The Stampeders surrendered just 3,824 yards, 1,968 on the ground.

Bantam Footballers Face Big Weekend

Esquimalt Lions face a busy weekend if they win their final game in the Norm Fieldgate Bantam Football League on Sunday at Braefoot Park at 11:30 a.m.

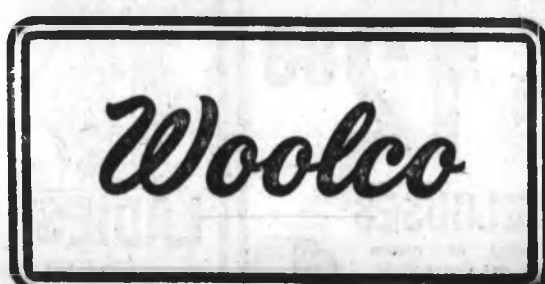

A victory over fifth-place Victoria Rams will give them the league title and advance them to the B.C. semifinal on Monday at Braefoot against the undefeated Richmond Warriors, who are reported to be bringing approximately 200 spectators.

Should Lions fail against Rams, Knights of Columbus, one point behind the leaders, can move into the semifinal with a victory over Oak Bay Invaders at 1 p.m. Final game Sunday has Glen Lake trying for its first victory at 2:30 against Gordon Head.

Young Kidnappers Jailed Eight Years

BURNABY (CP) — Two young men, Charles Dennis Russell, 19, and Raymond Henry Fontaine, 18, pleaded guilty Oct. 12 to kidnapping Mrs. Ruth Lillian Bruce during a prison breakout. The pair was also sentenced, along with Joseph Adrian Haggerty, 21, and Francis Robert, 18, on joint charges of prison break and robbing two guards of a shotgun and revolver. All four received 18-month sentences for prison break. Magistrate Harvey Jessup ordered all the sentences to be concurrent. Fontaine and Russell each received three years concurrent for breaking into Mrs. Bruce's home and six years for robbing her of clothing, a radio and a watch. Mrs. Bruce escaped from the two men by jumping from the car they were using and fleeing on foot. The pair was recaptured the same day in a house in Surrey following a telephone tip.

CNR Mailbags Loot At Least $300,000

MONTREAL (CP) — Post office investigators said Wednesday three bandits took at least $300,000 in cash and bonds when they grabbed two mailbags from a CNR train in downtown Central Station Tuesday night, shortly after Brinks Express guards delivered the bags to the train.

Truck Loggers Slash at Burns

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Truck Loggers' Association said Wednesday that current slash-burning procedures in B.C. lead to indiscriminate burning in a "festival of autumn madness."

In a brief to a government-appointed committee investigating the practice, the TLA said forest service staff should be trained to regulate burning to benefit new forest growth.

It also proposes that when a slash fire runs wild, the province bear the cost of fighting the fire and accept responsibility for damage to property of third parties.

The brief says some 80,000 acres of forest land are burned in a few days each year to get rid of tree waste, and costs of slash burning had reached more than $1,500,000 a year.

The association said most observers believe costs far outweigh benefits but this is impossible to substantiate because the benefits of slash burning are a matter of conjecture.

"What we do object to is the administrative procedures that condone indiscriminate burning and pay scant attention to the expensive and damaging burns ... of the past decade."

Stanfield:

Grits Threaten National Unity

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition leader Stanfield said Wednesday the Trudeau administration's "policy of confrontation" threatens national unity, has caused bitterness, "perhaps beyond precedent," in federal-provincial relations, and has risked "chaos" in the tax structure, with the possibility of the provinces challenging Ottawa directly in his area.

Speaking during Commons budget debate, he accused the government of hypocrisy and arrogance in complaining to the provinces about cost of shared-cost programs while compelling them to accept a new one in the form of medical care.

HIGH TAXES

Stanfield said the government is in a weak fiscal position despite high taxes and as a result the country was vulnerable to any economic downturn.

Much of Stanfield's hour-long speech was focused on Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

The blistering speech by Stanfield was followed by one from Liberal back-bencher Paul St. Pierre (Coast Chilcotin), a freshman MP who quickly emerged as a rebel.

FEDERAL DEFICIT

St. Pierre, to a burst of Opposition applause, described the current federal deficit as "sickening and frightening."

For the last decade, Liberal and Conservative governments, egged on by "irresponsible splinter parties," had adopted programs without care for the price.

Stanfield said that Benson had obviously been trying to create confidence in the Canadian economy by forecasting a balanced budget next year.

NO BELIEVERS

"Unfortunately, nobody believes him,"

Stanfield said that neither Benson nor Trudeau have offered any ideas to the provinces to hold spending on shared-cost programs. Their solution was obviously to get out of these programs.

The result would be that the provinces would have to start cutting back in areas such as education.

Benson, by raising taxes while telling the provinces to

Report Stays Secret

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Wednesday defeated, on a roll-call vote of 128 to 80, an opposition bid to force release of an interdepartmental report dealing with fish and game laws as they affect Indians.

All Opposition members — 56 Conservatives, 13 New Democrats and 11 Creditistes — backed the motion of Frank Howard (NDP-Skeena) for release of the report.

All Provinces

Driver Tests Same

REGINA (CP) — Ministers responsible for highway safety Wednesday were told all provinces now have adopted uniform standards for testing the sight of people applying for drivers' licences.

The vision standards, developed at the ministers' 1967 conference, have made it possible during the last year to give full recognition among provinces to operators' licences.

Each province now replaces an operator's licence from another province on payment of a fee, without requiring another examination.

OTHER ITEMS

A report issued after the first day of the two-day annual meeting said also progress had been made towards closer co-operation in maximum permissible weights and dimensions of vehicles, classification of drivers' licences, accident reporting, legislation and standards for school buses.

The conference supported the principle of uniform regulation governing the construction of school buses and urged that school bus manufacturers be required to attach to each vehicle a plate certifying that the bus met the minimum standards set by the Canadian Conference of Motor Transport Authorities.

SAFETY MEASURE

The ministers said in a press release the aim was to raise the level of school bus operations and construction standards to ensure greater safety for school children.

The closed-door sessions are being attended by ministers from all provincial and territorial governments except Newfoundland who are responsible for motor vehicles, driver licensing and highway safety.

Remembrance Day services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Langford and Sidney.

There will be no organized service in Saanich this year. Largest of the services will be held at the Cenotaph in front of the Legislative Buildings, where groups from Saanich and Victoria will participate.

Naden band will lead the parade to the Cenotaph from Government and Wharf Streets just before the 11 a.m. ceremony. Parade commander will be Lt.-Col. Leonard Forrest of the Fleet School.

A departure from tradition this year will be the firing of a 21-gun memorial salute by the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, RCA, from the heliport off Esquimalt Road instead of at the Inner Harbor as in former years. The salute will start at 11 a.m. and will be fired at one-minute intervals.

At the end of the two-minute period of silence, Herman Bergink will sound a tenor note on the Centennial carillon bells in the provincial museum complex. After the service, Mr. Bergink will play tunes from the two world wars.

The salute will be taken by Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson from a stand in front of the Empress Hotel following the ceremony.

In the parade will be platoons of veterans; the Canadian navy; 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada; Victoria-based militia units; Victoria city police and military cadet organizations.

A Canadian Armed Forces wreath will be laid at the Cenotaph by Rear-Admiral John Charles, commander, maritime forces, Pacific.

The admiral's representatives will lay wreaths at the other ceremonies. They include Commander R. V. Henning, commander of HMC Dockyard, at the Esquimalt ceremony; Capt. F. C. Frewer, commander CFB, Esquimalt, at Oak Bay; Lt.-Col. K. O. Moore, senior staff officer operations, at Langford; and Lieut. Robert Spicer, air engineering officer of the navy's utility air squadron VU-33, at Patricia Bay.

The Royal Canadian Legion will conduct its annual Greater Victoria Remembrance Day memorial service in St. John's Anglican Church at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. The lesson will be read by the lieutenant-governor.

Noncampaign In Absentia Ends Wordily

SEATTLE (AP) — Richard A. C. Greene, the iconoclast who became the Republican candidate for Washington state land commissioner by political accident, threw in the towel Wednesday.

He said in a telephone call from Honolulu where he conducted his noncampaign in absentia, mostly floating in the surf: "My air mattress seems to have sprung a leak."

Greene, trailing by better than 4 to 1, conceded to his Democratic opponent, Bert Cole, in a fractured statement issued through his newspaper-columnist campaign manager here.

"I am totally gratified that the voters of our great state, including I might add, even my own supporters, have assured—by his (Cole's) re-election—acquired at great pains to himself, and at the taxpayers' expense, as he would had I triumphed—he lost to us and our great land, at least as far east as Yakima and especially the space just west of Lewiston, Idaho and north of Las Vegas."

The balding, rotund, 30-year-old classics instructor at the University of Hawaii entered the primary race as a joke, won the Republican nomination from three opponents without making a single speech or distributing a line of campaign literature, and spoofed it the rest of the way.

He proposed, among other things, ceding "that sage brush wasteland" of eastern Washington to Idaho and turning the vast Boeing Industrial complex into a green belt.

Greene was a teaching assistant at the University of Washington and ran the Jean Paul Sartre No-Exit rooming house in the university district when he filed for office. He joined the Hawaii faculty during the summer but maintained his voting registration here.

Burden Stressed

LBJ Congratulates Nixon, Humphrey

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — President Johnson congratulated President-Elect Richard Nixon Wednesday, telling Nixon the responsibilities of leadership are too important for "narrow partisanship."

Johnson sent telegrams to both Nixon and Hubert Humphrey. Johnson's condolence telegram to Humphrey praised him for his "brave, enlightened and vigorous" campaign.

Johnson told Nixon: "As you well know, the responsibilities of leadership today are probably heavier than they have ever been before. They are certainly too heavy, and too important to be also encumbered by narrow partisanship."

"I hope that our people will turn now from the divisive contentions of the political campaign to a united search for peace and social justice."

Johnson assured Nixon he will "do everything in my power to make your burdens lighter on that day when you assume the responsibilities of the presidency."

Johnson's wire to Humphrey praised him for fighting "well and hard."

"You have carried your convictions and the standard of our party with eloquence and magnificent courage," he said.

"In 20 years of national service, you have had no finer hours than those of the past few weeks — in which you awakened the support and interest of millions of our people."

"As a fellow public servant, as a fellow Democrat, and as your friend of two decades, I am proud of you and the brave, enlightened, and vigorous campaign you have waged."

Housing task force commander Paul Hellyer at Wednesday's hearing

—Jim Ryan

B.C. Told on Housing:

Use Pension Funds As Mortgage Boost

By IAN STREET

A member of the federal task force on housing suggested here Wednesday that provincially administered pension funds be invested in mortgages as one solution to the housing crisis in B.C.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell replied on behalf of the provincial government that top priority is given to investing pension funds in schools, hospitals and hydro. Someone in the audience shouted, "Mostly hydro!"

"I would disagree with that statement," Mr. Campbell said. He later repeated that the priority given to new schools and hospitals in this area of provincial investment "is likely to remain for several years." But he indicated the government planned new assistance to prospective home owners at the next session.

W. Peter Carter of Montreal, a member of the federal task force on housing and urban development, asked the minister whether he thought it would not be a good idea if some of the $30,000,000 to $100,000,000 in pension funds invested by B.C. annually was diverted into home mortgages.

Current Crisis

"We have a crisis in housing," said Mr. Carter. "Mortgage money must be increased, and by investing pension funds in mortgages we could allow people to have a debt-free house on retirement and have them contributing to their own pension funds by paying interest on the mortgage."

Mr. Campbell replied that B.C. had more pension funds to invest than other provinces because they were fully funded. He added, "We in B.C. have never taken the view that anyone but the federal government has 100 per cent control over credit in Canada and over national financial policies. If that is to be questioned, I suggest we could spend all afternoon on this discussion."

In Five Years

Mr. Carter added, however, that pension funds invested across Canada would amount to $14 billion over the next five years. "The governments who make these investments are not only responsible to the pension fund contributors, they have a wider social responsibility to the whole community to invest some of this money in the mortgage market."

In his brief, Mr. Campbell suggested to the hearing that both B.C. and Ottawa should make financial commitments to public housing projects, then turn over the finances to the B.C. Housing Management Commission, which represents all three levels of government, to carry out the schemes using local planners. This would cut through red tape, speeding projects and cutting costs, the minister said.

Special Areas

Mr. Campbell also asked federal authorities to lend money to municipalities who wish to upgrade special urban areas. He stressed that the housing and urban development problems would only be solved if all governments attacked them co-operatively. Briefs were received from professional and community groups as well as from representatives of deserted wives, low-income mothers, and Indians.

Mrs. Sarah Siple, president of the Fernwood Ladies Group, told the commission there should be a centre for deserted wives and their children who lose their homes. It should function like centres for rehabilitation of alcoholics and provide help "at a crucial time when the family is under fire."

Mother of Six

The group's vice-president, mother of six, Mrs. June Akhurst said she had no time for fancy talk. "We need homes and we need them now. We have to have somewhere to put our kids. We need them now — not tomorrow. You men have all the brains, much more than I'll ever have, so you'd better do something."

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, who heads the federal task force, thanked the women for their "very moving" submission. He said: "We hope to be able to stretch the available dollars for home construction so that, if not in a few days or weeks, but within a few months we will be able to increase the supply of housing very dramatically. That is why we are here."

The task force members also came under fire from social worker Reg Clarkson, representing the Victoria Low Income Group. He told them: "After listening to you I'm afraid the poor are not going to get much help. I hope you make an effort in your final presentation to bring home to Canadians that there are real poor in our midst."

Most Obvious

"I know there are priorities and no dollars, but unless people are willing to pay, this social injustice will continue," Dr. Doris Boyle, a member of the task force from the Maritime, said Mr. Clarkson's remarks were "unjust" because they indicated that the task force didn't care about human need.

"Government cannot solve every problem, no matter how compassionate it may be," she said. "And even if it could, government wouldn't do it. Sometimes the most obvious and superficial solutions are not the best."

Mr. Hellyer said too often the task force had found that suggestions for solving the housing crisis simply boiled down to raising costs, and added this wasn't the answer. "We must have more productivity," he said. "The available dollar must be stretched. The price of money must be brought down, the cost of construction and land must be brought down. It is a difficult. We don't want a result that merely brings an increase in taxes."

Molly Daniels, a 19-year-old nurse's aide, made an individual submission on behalf of Indians who came to Victoria from remote areas of the province and the Yukon and found it difficult to get accommodation.

A study of 154 such cases, she said, showed families averaged eight people crowded into four rooms. Three-quarters were either drawing pensions or on welfare and those who did have jobs were generally low paid. Some were brought here by authorities for medical treatment and 120 others were students boarding in private homes, usually with Indian families.

Mrs. Daniels asked the commission to provide "encouragement, advice and financial backing" for Indians in cities, and particularly those who will board other Indians.

Same Interest

George Burnham, making another individual submission, said families who needed homes should be offered mortgages at the same low interest-between three-quarters and 11 per cent—charged on money sent abroad by Canada under the Colombo Plan.

He was rebuffed by Mr. Hellyer, who said Canadians must never forget there were people in other countries far worse off than themselves who must be helped.

F. W. Nicholas, a consulting architect and former federal director of housing, suggested sale of non-taxable, 4 per cent federal bonds exclusively for housing and suggested the government enter partnership with private mortgage firms on a 50-50 basis.

UVic Planner

J. A. Webb, director of campus planning for the University of Victoria, said more federal funds should be made available for student housing. But Dr. Boyle observed: "I wonder if we aren't making life a little too easy for students."

Mrs. May Campbell, speaking on behalf of Silver Threads, said the organization felt it should have more federal help in providing low-cost housing for the elderly.

Brian Tobin, speaking for the Community Welfare Council, said more information should be made available to the public on services provided by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Tory Raps Inquiry:

Canadians Tired Of Buck-Passing

People are sick of buck-passing, squabbling, red tape, task forces, royal commissions and all the machinery which obstructs housing reform in Canada, Victoria Conservatives were told Wednesday.

Howard Grafty, former Conservative MP and parliamentary secretary to the minister of finance, said the travelling housing inquiry, which sat in Victoria Wednesday, had enough information already to enable the government to get moving.

"Two years ago Mr. Pearson proposed a council on housing. Last year we had a travelling symposium and also last year a federal-provincial conference on housing, which went on the rocks because of money problems."

TASK FORCE

"This year we have a cross-country task force — another travelling circus — and still nothing has been done," Mr. Grafty said to his audience of about 50 party stalwarts during an Empress Hotel reception.

Describing himself as "an Opposition presence," appointed by Conservative leader Robert Stanfield to follow the inquiry, the speaker said it was well known that obstructions to home construction in Canada were the

Cordova Bay Site Revived As Hovercraft Possibility

Still smarting from Oak Bay's rejection, commercial hovercraft official B. W. Heeney declared Wednesday night: "We'll get into the Victoria area yet, even if I have to carry the hovercraft over from Vancouver on my back."

However, it appeared that the disappointed executive vice-president of Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. might yet find a more conventional solution for his problems.

Cordova Bay businessman Bruce McMorran said his brother, Eric, planned to talk to hovercraft officials this week about the possibility of establishing a Cordova Bay port. Eric McMorran is in Vancouver on other business.

The Colonist reported during the summer that Cordova Bay was presumably being studied as a possible landing site for the hovercraft.

Bruce McMorran said Wednesday night that his brother had been approached much earlier by the company, at a time when various prospective landing sites were being investigated. But there had been no recent communications.

The hovercraft company, planning passenger service between Vancouver and Greater Victoria and Nanaimo, announced earlier that the first run would be made Dec. 21.

"But that setback at Oak Bay is going to have its effect," Mr. Heeney said, admitting that any opening of service to the southern end of the Island would be delayed.

Plans to establish a landing site at Oak Bay Marina was scuttled by the municipal council Monday night when it decided not to allow even trial period for the hovercraft.

Petitions had been signed by residents opposing the marina site. Council also voiced opposition to the noise factor, commercialism and the hazard it felt the hovercraft would create for sail boats.

OPINION NEEDED

Mr. Heeney said the only hope of reversing Oak Bay's decision lay with the people of the community. He said he knew that many did not agree with "the vociferous minority" who appeared before council objecting to the hovercraft service.

Enough pressure from those wanting Oak Bay as a port site could cause council to reassess its stand, he said.

Of himself and others associated with the company, he said: "We're Irish enough not to accept first refusals."

Walkers Will Use Pat Bay Overpass

Overpasses for pedestrians will be included in the current Patricia Bay Highway reconstruction program, MLA John Tisdalle said Wednesday.

Adequate provision is being made for overpasses for students going to and from school, the Social Credit member for Saanich and the Islands said. He said he was keeping in close touch with Highways Minister Wesley Black for announcement of overpass locations.

"There's little hope of the highway along Elk Lake being moved at this time," reported Mr. Tisdalle.

Incorporation

Province Sets Vote Date Soon

In 30 days, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will set a date for taxpayers to decide if they want self-government for Colwood, Langford and Metochin.

Probable date will be Feb. 1 next year—two months later than the study committee had originally asked for.

Mr. Campbell said he would like to hear from individuals and groups with ideas on the timing of the referendum before making a final decision.

MORE TIME

Study committee chairman Stan Hiseock, a leading proponent of incorporation, said Wednesday he felt the later date would give more time to get information to the people.

"Mr. Campbell is very conscious of the need for a favorable climate for this vote," said Mr. Hiseock. "He feels we would be pushing it too much to try to reach all the people by December."

"I agree with him."

An opponent, Andy Cottyn, said he was only interested in being told the full facts of incorporation.

"I might even be for it, if I knew exactly what this would cost," he said.

"They say municipal government wouldn't raise the mill rate, but they can only hope to run a Mickey Mouse government on that kind of money."

"The study committee has put in a lot of time on this, and I would like them to take further time to draw up a budget based on, say, a 20-mill rate and tell us what we would get."

NOT ACTUAL EXPENSE

"It's not the actual expense that's bothering people, so much as wondering just what they would get for their money."

Mr. Cottyn said he would be glad to see the matter put to a vote.

"It's dragged on too long already," he said.

Stray Dogs Worrying Sheep in Metochin

A black collie-type dog with a white chest and a young, long-haired brown dog in Metochin are suspected sheep worryers.

The dogs could be taken away to be destroyed, they could be shot, and in any case their owners could find themselves liable for heavy damages, one sheep farmer said.

Colwood RCMP said Wednesday they had had three reports of sheep worrying from Metochin in one day.

"These are the first reports for some time, and we have pretty good descriptions of the dogs," said an RCMP spokesman.

"Our first step, when we are sure of the responsible dogs and their owners, will be to ask that the dogs be kept tied up. If necessary, we shall have to take them away."

Mrs. T. A. Coburn of Wootton Road had a sheep severely torn and two others injured by mauling dogs in the early hours of the morning.

Later farmer Geoff Mitchell had to drive two dogs away from his ewes.

Modest Service, Fees

By CLEMENT CHAPPELLE

Secret admirers, tongue-tied suitors, worshippers form afar—Bill and Joe will break the ice for a modest fee.

After the first day in operation, Bill's and Joe's Modest Proposal Service has a good record. It has already fixed up two dates for two hesitant Victoria gentlemen.

Bill Thomas (not the one on the Colonist) and Joe Reginald received 11 calls Wednesday, nine of which were seriously interested in getting help for their modest problems.

The service works like this: a serious applicant must part with $5 to engage the services of Bill and Joe. The caller must know his or her secret love, and vice-versa. This is not a lonely hearts club operation.

Then Bill or Joe interviews the object of affection to see if he or she is willing to give it a try. If a date is arranged, there is another $5 fee.

One date, says Bill, should be enough to get things started. Unless, of course, the matter of marriage comes up. The minimum fee for putting the big question is $25. Top fee of $35 would be charged if prolonged negotiations were needed.

Although a marriage contract hasn't yet been asked for, Bill has the necessary experience. In fact, it was just such a situation that gave Bill and Joe the idea of starting their service.

One month ago, a friend of Bill's unloaded his problems over a late-night tipping session.

"My friend was a big, brash, outspoken individual, but when it got down to asking for a date, he couldn't do it."

Bill's friend's friend was in Ottawa, so it was 5 a.m. there when her telephone rang and a marriage proposal was put by Bill the middleman.

It worked. The wedding will take place Jan. 12. Bill believes it can work for others in Victoria. "A lot of people here need help," he says. "So far, response has been excellent."

How will shy Victorians take to the idea of a stranger fulfilling this most important function for them? Bill's wife, who answers the telephone with a charmingly accented voice, seems to think Bill will do the job admirably.

"Some people need someone with experience in proposing," she says. "He asked me, and did it very nicely."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I came across something which describes how I feel to the nth degree. I hope you will print it because it is the story of my life—mine and a million other teenage girls. Here it is:

"Whoever started that fairy tale that teenage years are the happiest must have been out of his head."

"I hope thousands of teenage boys see this because they are the main reason for the misery of so many teenage girls. At every party, whether it's a school hop, or a get-together at somebody's house, or a church mixer, you always see a group of girls standing in a circle. They are laughing and talking and at a glance you think they are having a wonderful time."

"The truth is they are having a lousy time and they wish they had stayed home. These girls stick together and try to look gay, but they are miserable and depressed because they know they will stand there all evening and no boy will ask them to dance."

"All the boys run after three of four of the prettiest and most popular girls. The plainer girls, like me, never get a tumble. It's humiliating and heartbreaking."

"Why doesn't someone tell high school boys to be more considerate. So what if a girl is not a great dancer or a living doll? She may have a lot on the ball if only a guy would give her a chance. One thing is certain. She'll appreciate you a lot more than the

It's Daughter's Choice

Dear Miss Landers: Our daughter plans to be married in June, following her graduation from college. Brenda had been active in the church on campus. She wants to be married there.

She was also active in our family church but has gotten away from it since she went to school.

We have no objection to her choice, but it means her grandparents, aunts and uncles and our older friends will have quite a distance to travel and will probably not make the trip. Also, arranging a reception in a strange city will be a lot of extra work for me.

Will you give us an outsider's opinion? — MRS. BRP OF BOSTON

Dear Mrs.: The bride's decision should be final. It would have been generous had she considered your wishes, but since she did not, go along with her preference and keep all the plans very simple. And don't be bashful about asking her to handle some of the arrangements.

ERMA BOMBECK on Buying Knack

Men Are Like That

The record for a man purchasing a car was set by Hal Ramrod of Oaldland, Calif., who selected, test drove, kicked four tires, and signed a three-year note in less than 8½ minutes.

Men are like this. They can make up their minds to buy a $4,000 boat in 24 hours, a new suit in less than 15 minutes and a Bunny Club membership in less than 15 seconds.

We have been shopping for a new light fixture for 2½ years.
"Light fixtures are important," insists my husband. "Once you are committed to one, that's it. You're stuck with it. You must look at it and ask yourself, 'Is this something I would like to look at every day of my life as long as I live in this house? Is this going to serve me well? Would I want my daughter to marry it?'"

"The trouble with women," he continued, "is that you don't know how to handle salespeople. You are too eager; too anxious to buy the first piece of merchandise that comes down the pike. Now you watch and let me do the talking."

We entered the lamp department of a discount house. "Hello there. Could I help you, sir?" asked the salesman.
"No, we're just looking," said my husband. Aside he said, "Did you feel the old pressure? Now watch him try to push us into the highest priced fixture in the house. Where is he? Behind me?"

"He went back in the stockroom," I said tiredly.
"Oh, I know these birds," he said. "I'll bet you dollars to doughnuts that fixture we were looking at last month has been marked down to a song. Oh sir! Sir, could we look at that fixture that used to hang over the model dinette awhile back?"

"The wrought iron and the wood one?" he asked. "We sold that one, sir. That was more than two years ago."

"It was like I was telling my wife," he said. "When you see something you like you ought to snap it up. Don't mess around. I suppose now we can do one of several things. We can wait until your spring shipment comes in. Or we could shop 20 or 30 more lamp departments and hope to find something similar or we could buy something we hate and adjust to it."

"Let's buy something we hate and adjust to it," I said excitedly.

A Lovelier You

Stick Your Tongue Out If Lot of Weight Lost

By MARY SUE MILLER

When a woman loses a large amount of weight, her facial muscles are apt to become slack. Then the chin and throat begin to sag; the skin loses its elasticity and is cross-hatched with fine lines. If you are lucky, nature

The salesman smiled. "While you're making up your minds I should mention that the store is having a close-out sale in the sporting goods department on spinning reels and rods." I felt every nerve in my husband's body quiver. "Will you take a cheque?" he asked fumbling for his pen.

may step in and restore some of the lost tone. But you cannot depend on it. The wise move is to take steps that help prevent such problems during and after a reducing period.

The following routines work to keep the facial musculature tight while the flesh that once propped it up drains away. Here's what you do:

• Open mouth wide and hold, keeping jaw tense. Next slowly purse lips into a small circle. Then, pointing tongue, stick it out for several seconds. Relax and repeat three times.

• Hold face in hand, palms under chin and fingers along sides of cheeks. Now chew — hard and deliberately — while you press up with palms and down with lower jaw. Continue for one minute.

• Purse lips, open eyes wide and lift eyebrows upward as far as possible. Hold for five counts and repeat 10 times.

When possible, massage a bit of moisturizing cream into the face before exercising. Afterwards pat on a mild astringent.

Above all, once you've reduced, stay reduced. Otherwise the skin comes to look like a pricked balloon.

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

It wasn't a case of getting the crowd out for the Jubilee Hospital Junior Auxiliary bazaar Wednesday. It was more a matter of controlling the eager shoppers who had turned out to buy and buy.

As usual the luncheon was filled to capacity with many waiting at the top of the stairs where Mrs. T. F. Rose was keeping count. Barbara Steel was taking tickets at the luncheon door.

Mrs. K. J. Norgaard, the general convener, and Mrs. R. H. Byers, who was in charge of publicity, took me to lunch. Mrs. Norgaard was so pleased

Main Upstairs Lounge

Upstairs in the main lounge all the stalls had their share of shoppers. They were lined up three deep around the costume jewelry and the home cooking where there were some delicious looking cakes.

Something new were the colorful Christmas wreaths made of candy and the brandy snifters filled with candy were topped with a gay Santa Claus tasselled hats.

Stopped a few minutes to talk to Mrs. W. F. Jerry and Mrs. Sheenstone Wilks, the latter only just back from a five-month visit with her

Assisted by Executive

Mrs. R. S. Goldney was co-convener with Mrs. Norgaard and they were assisted by members of the executive, Mrs. G. H. Carter, Mrs. W. Hughes, Miss L. Maxwell, Mrs. R. Stacey, Mrs. A. M. Oswald, Mrs. Margaret Carter, Mrs. A. H. Bamford and Mrs. Byers.

Mrs. D. J. Hunter was in charge of the sale of the main raffle tickets. With a milk stool in front of them most women couldn't resist buying at least one ticket.

Mrs. G. H. Bray assisted Mrs. Dickinson in convening the luncheon and Mrs. M. W. McKelvie looked after the tea.

In charge of the stalls were Mrs. H. F. Yerex; boutiques; Mrs. H. G. Ellis, jewelry; Mrs. J. G. Jones, gifts; Mrs.

about a gift of 50 hats from the auxiliary to St. George's Martyr.

This was sort of return gesture as Mrs. W. D. Dickinson had given a lot of chrysanthemum plants to St. George's for their sale last spring. Mrs. Dickinson convened the luncheon Wednesday.

family in England. She was also in Scotland and Wales. Arriving back in Vancouver about 1:30 a.m. Mrs. Wilks decided to phone her family to tell them of her safe arrival. "They were at breakfast and I hadn't had any sleep. But the call was so clear they thought I had come back to England," she said.

The bazaar was definitely a success and the coffers were enriched by the grand sum of $7,600. It takes a lot of work to make that amount of money and the first of the year will see members beginning to make things for the 1969 bazaar.

Daughters in Victoria

Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Harvey will be celebrating their golden wedding anniversary by holding open house for their friends Sunday from 2 to 5 in the afternoon at their home, 911 Leslie Drive.

They were married in Canada's oldest church, St. Paul's Anglican in Halifax Nov. 5, 1918. After a spell of home-staying in Saskatchewan Mr. Harvey served with the Royal Canadian Navy for 21 years.

Since retirement they have lived on Vancouver Island, mainly in Victoria and area.

They are both active members of the Lake Hill Bowling Club and Mrs. Harvey is hard working member of the Gorge Road Hospital Auxiliary. Mr. Harvey has recently taken up oil painting.

The couple has three daughters living in Victoria, Mrs. Alice Grant, Mrs. Frances Robertson and Mrs. Raemilla Gibbons. They also have 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The family gave a dinner for their parents on Nov. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Durell are another couple who will be marking their golden wedding anniversary Nov. 11. They will be at home to their friends at 3120 Quadra Street from 7 to 9 in the evening on that day.

The Durells are former residents of Regina.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. (Paddy) Perrins will have their family with them this weekend to help them celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Beware Mr. Manufacturer, Retailer

Canada's Buyers Calling Shot

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian consumer is a "disenchanted" person, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday, and the federal government plans to do something about it, since business is apparently unable to correct the situation.

It is time for the seller to "take care," Basford said in a speech to the Montreal Board of Trade, for the buying public is going to become better informed.

"The customer has become disenchanted as a consumer," the minister said. "He feels that the marketplace is letting him down and he is beginning to tell producers and retailers that this just isn't good enough. He is demanding protection against fraud and deception. "He is demanding protection against hazardous substances. He is demanding full, accurate information and true prices."

The government intended to help the consumer get that information. Education and information were the keys to better and wiser shopping. "It is my belief that when the consumer knows the salient facts about what he is buying, when he knows his rights under the sales contract, and when he knows that his customer has this knowledge—then many of our problems will disappear. The manufacturer of shoddy goods and the unscrupulous retailer will find it more and more difficult to operate. The consumer is more likely to be satisfied with the goods and services he purchases, and he will tend to develop greater confidence in the marketplace and in your institutions."

Basford told his audience of businessmen that informed customers are good for them. "A knowledgeable customer is no threat to the honest businessman and certainly no threat to the marketplace."

There had been strong consumer demand for adoption of the European practice in the textile industry of marking the content and describing the care required by a fabric.

"It is a perfectly reasonable demand and the few technical problems it raises, we find, are not insurmountable," the minister said.

"Accordingly, we propose to introduce a system of mandatory fibre-content labelling for all household textiles. We are also introducing a system of easily understood graphic symbols, denoting fabric care, which we hope will be voluntarily adopted by the industry."

Taking another example of government action, he said hazardous products legislation before Parliament will require proper labelling of glues that can cause injury or death when misused. The danger of glue-sniffing was "more than a marketing problem," but the government could still legislate to reduce the danger. "We have been compelled by events to pursue this course in the absence of action by industry."

Basford said the complaint service and the monthly consumer report provided by his department are only the beginnings of its information program.

Ways had to be found of persuading people to read labels and of providing effective service outside the major cities.

But the elderly, the infirm and immigrants with a limited knowledge of French or English provided equally big problems. No method of establishing an effective consumer information system for these groups has been discovered.

Yet, "these are the people so often victimized by the unscrupulous manufacturer or the fly-by-night operator." Basford said the new 24-member Canadian Consumer Council, whose membership was announced in Ottawa Wednesday, will help the government find the answers.

"We are determined that the key to our whole economic structure, the consumer, should be able to exercise his purchasing power in a rational, intelligent and informed manner."

Loyalty Pledge Most Fervent From Grateful Running Mate

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Spiro Agnew pledged Wednesday that he would be "as loyal a vice-president as ever has been loyal to a man."

Acknowledging he had been "concerned" at times that he may have hurt the Republican ticket by mistakes he made because of his "lack of experience" in national politics, Agnew said he was grateful to President-elect Richard Nixon for constant trust and understanding.

"During the time when this campaign got rather heated, during the time when a lesser man may have been inclined to interject into my particular efforts in this attempt to be elected certain advice that may have been very upsetting to me under the events and circumstances, Mr. Nixon showed a restraint and confidence in me that few people have ever exhibited," Agnew said.

"And I can only say this: that as vice-president I will be as loyal a vice-president as has ever been loyal to a man."

"Now we begin to forge a vibrant, vital new America that stands for law, order and justice; hope and opportunity; prosperity and peace," Agnew said.

After the weeks of "exhausting and fierce competition," he said, "the goal is not to destroy, but to create a better America." He said all Americans must share in "this moment of re-dedication by rejecting partisanship and repudiating extremism."

Wallace Looks Ahead

He'll Play It by Ear

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (LAT) — George Wallace bowed out of national politics temporarily Wednesday, saying he was going to become "just another Alabama lawyer," but left the door open for another presidential race in 1972.

"It all depends on what transpires," and "I'll play it by ear" over the next four years, Wallace said when asked if he would run again as a third-party presidential candidate.

IF ISSUES THERE

He indicated he might run again if the issues he campaigned on in 1968—law and order, federal spending, states rights, federal court rulings—still existed in 1972. He said however, he hoped the nation's problems would be resolved by then.

Wallace also said he had no plans to enter Alabama politics.

LITTLE ENCOURAGEMENT

He offered little real encouragement, however, to members of his American Independent Party across the nation when asked if it would continue as a political vehicle.

Although Wallace, 49, insisted his third-party movement had been "remarkably successful," he avoided speaking in any detail of the party's future.

Asked several times about this, Wallace replied: "Our party is still in existence. It will continue. The policies we espoused will live on."

Asked if he would continue to guide the party's future, Wallace noted the machinery would be "left in the hands of the people in the states." He declined to discuss plans for local party candidacies in the states or go into any future involvement of the party.

Wallace noted that his party had received 10,000,000 votes, that it had been on the ballots of 50 states and that it had changed the issues and strategies of the Democrats and Republicans—and achieved all of this while originating in the Deep South.

Wallace's running mate, retired Air Force Gen. Curtis LeMay, said he has accomplished all the goals he had envisioned when he entered the campaign 32 days ago. "I'm going home in a very happy frame of mind," he said.

Humphrey Wants No Sympathy Chin Still Defiant in Defeat

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — At the end, Hubert Horatio Humphrey was worried that someone might feel sorry for him.

"I don't want any sympathy from any of you," he told his family and a few close friends in his hotel suite.

His blue eyes glistened and a smile broke from behind the outthrust chin that has been an American political fixture for two decades.

It was over. The obstacles were too numerous — too many labor defections to Wallace, too little support from the Negro community, too many angry Democrats who stayed home in protest, too little time. Ohio, California and Illinois had drifted to Nixon.

Humphrey had gone off to bed in the wee hours of the morning with hopes still flickering faintly but awake after a fitful rest and got the news that he had lost one of the closest elections in history. At 11:30 a.m., he rode the 14 floors down to the Hall of States in the Leamington Hotel to choke out the concession speech in which he offered his full support to Richard Nixon and promised to continue service to the public and the party.

It was the bitterest of political experiences for this most human of men — his nomination by a Democratic party in agony and anger, two months of trying to outrun the defeat burning his heels at every step, a surging revival of hopes in the campaign's final days and the long, frustrating night of his defeat.

He stepped back, reached for his wife Muriel and kissed her on the lips. The crowd of several hundred was on its feet applauding. Women were in tears. He saw the reflection of his own ordeal and decided to step back in front of the microphone for a post script which turned out to be longer than his concession speech.

"Now, go home some fun," he implored them. "It has been a lot of hard work. I don't want anybody to have any extra sympathy."

For himself, he said he felt a "great sense of both release and relief," and he was going back to his lakeside retreat in nearby Waverly to mow the lawn.

Humphrey is 57. At the outset of his campaign, he told newsmen that, if he lost, he probably would be too old to try for the presidency again in 1972 and probably would return to college teaching.

Five Cats, Dog, Vessel Held

Five cats, a dog and a 62-foot boat, "all the worldly possessions" of Dr. James Watt, are being held by the crown and will guarantee the doctor's re-appearance for trial, defence counsel Lloyd McKenzie told Central Magistrate's Court Wednesday.

The Sausalito, Calif., physician and surgeon pleaded not guilty to two charges of possession of goods unlawfully imported into Canada, after electing trial by magistrate.

One charge specifies 300 am-poules of LSD and about 25 grams of mescaline, names the place as Victoria, and the date as about Oct. 24.

SECOND CHARGE
 The second charge stating "a quantity" of LSD and mescaline is dated between Oct. 28 and Nov. 1 and names Vancouver as the place. The second charge was first read Wednesday.

Magistrate William Ostler told counsel for both sides Dr. Watt was free without bail because "the crown neglected to issue a warrant" at the time he was charged.

The 62-foot ketch Navita and the animals were seized in Victoria. The yacht is at HMC Dockyard and a dog and two cats were taken to the SPCA shelter, where one of the cats gave birth to three kittens.

PETS BOARDED
 An SPCA spokesman said Dr. Watt has since arranged boarding for his pets with a veterinarian.

When the subject of bail was mentioned after a remand to Nov. 26 for trial, defence told court the accused would "report to the RCMP daily, or twice daily," to retain his freedom, because he had to return to the U.S. for information available there and needed in his trial.

FREE MAN
 Magistrate Ostler again said this would not be necessary because the crown did not issue a warrant, and said that although he had advised the crown several times of this point, "the crown never seems to pay attention. The man is as free as the breeze."

Mr. McKenzie told court Dr. Watt was licensed to practise in New York, Michigan, and California, and assured court he would appear when required.

common, Magistrate Ostler said there was "nothing extraordinary about it," in his case.

Trentin, 33, of 748 Rogers, pleaded guilty to violating the Excise Act by unlawfully manufacturing spirits.

Defence attorney Robert Hutchinson told court Trentin thought making wine was not illegal as long as he didn't sell any of it, and said the practice was a "type of activity common in Italy."

Court was told police found 735 ounces of homemade wine in a cellar of Trentin's home Oct. 22. Prosecutor Cory Skille agreed with the magistrate on a minimum fine of $100.

Drinking wine as he walked along Government Street in an intoxicated condition Tuesday, brought Samuel G. Milligan, 53, of no fixed address, before court charged with vagrancy and consuming liquor in public. Milligan pleaded guilty to both and was sentenced to 30 days on the first charge and 10 days concurrent on the second. Court heard he answered police questions about where he lived with, "In Egypt, on top of the pyramids." They found a second bottle of wine on his person and said he had only 40 cents.

Because Umberto Trentin immigrated to Canada from Italy, where making wine at home is Because six Crown witnesses' testimony "left a hole big enough to fire a muzzle-loading cannon through, let alone a 30/06 rifle," in Magistrate Ostler's words, a charge of possession of stolen goods valued over $50, against Edward W. Hayes, of 572 Atmore, was dismissed.

Magistrate Ostler said in his judgment that crown testimony did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt the rifle Mr. Hayes admitted he purchased was actually stolen.

Three young men who earlier elected trial by judge after being charged with two counts of possessing narcotics, appeared to change that election to trial by magistrate.

William P. Murray, 20, of 1492 Dallas, Richard D. Payne, 22, of 4926 Cordova Bay, and Edwin M. Perry, 21, of 4975 Cordova Bay, all pleaded not guilty to both counts and were remanded to Nov. 28 for trial.

Vincent Mairano, 35, of 961 Cowichan, pleaded guilty to violating the Excise Act and was fined the minimum $100 asked by the crown.

Court was told police found a dismantled still Oct. 23 hidden in his home, and four gallons of spirits hidden in a bed with a member of his family.

Horace Middleton received a suspended sentence on a common assault charge and was placed on a three-month $100 bond.

Herbert J. Lowe, 22, who was remanded earlier for sentencing, was told by Magistrate Ostler, "Instead of going to work and enhancing your skills, you write bad cheques."

He was sentenced to three months for obtaining money by false pretences.

Sweet Prize Taken

Aplarist George Van't Haaff of 710 Violet has won the Canadian Silver Shield of the Canadian Beekeepers Council for the best liquid honey.

The award was presented last week at a British Columbia Honey Producers Association convention in New Westminster. Competition came from as far away as Ontario.

Mr. Van't Haaff, who began keeping bees while serving in the Royal Canadian Navy, now devotes all his time to apiculture.

FIRST PRIZES

His other awards this year were first prizes and best-of-show awards at the Pacific National Exhibition and the North and South Saanich Agricultural Fair.

They came in every class entered: liquid white, golden, dark, comb and granulated.

The honey that won the Silver Shield was all collected from Saanich orchards and gardens.

Mr. Van't Haaff is the B.C. representative for the World Bee Research Council, headquarters in England. Dr. Eva Crane, director of the council, recently rated Vancouver Island honey among the best in the world.

Regional Plan Aired Soon

City council next week will consider a proposal to bring regional planning under the control of the Capital Region District Board.

Council members have already held two informal meetings to discuss the matter, but next week's meeting will be the first public airing of aldermanic views. The move has already been approved by Esquimalt and Central Saanich, and requires the approval of all areas represented on the district board.

Ald. Ian Stewart, city representative on the planning board, has indicated three guarantees that should be spelled out before the city ratifies the merger of planning and other regional affairs.

He said city planners must retain autonomy in their own area; there should be more community representation on the technical planning board, and it should not be possible for a simple majority of board members to impose a decision on the over-all region.

Guessing Time

Evans in Cabinet? Rockefeller, Too?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Washington's re-elected Governor Daniel Evans could wind up in the Richard Nixon cabinet as secretary of the interior.

Aides to the U.S. president-elect Wednesday speculated on many names, adding California parks director William Penn Mott as another interior possibility.

Nixon is likely to offer New York's Governor Nelson Rockefeller the job of secretary of state, although he could wind up heading the defence department.

Former Pennsylvania governor William Scranton is another possibility for state, and still another is New York financier Douglas Dillon, undersecretary of state for President Eisenhower. Dillon was also treasury secretary in the Kennedy and Johnson cabinets.

Lieutenant-Governor Robert Finch of California seems sure to be in the Nixon cabinet, probably as attorney-general.

Other names mentioned for that post are Los Angeles county District Attorney Evelle Younger and Charles Rhyne, former American Bar Association president and a Nixon classmate at Duke law school.

Possible candidates for other cabinet posts:

- Commerce — Governor George Romney of Michigan and Democratic Sen. George Smathers of Florida, an old friend of Nixon who would contribute bipartisan flavor to the cabinet.

- Housing and urban development—Mayor John Lindsay of New York.

- Health, education and welfare—Sen. Edward Brooke (R-Mass.) only negro member of the U.S. senate. He might be reluctant to leave the senate.

- Interior — William Penn Mott, head of the California department of parks and recreation; Gov. Dan Evans of Washington.

- Agriculture—Rep. Albert Quie (R-Minn.) and former Rep. Clifford McIntire (R-Maine).

Open Administration Promised

'Bring Us Together' Sign Gave Nixon Major Goal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President-elect Richard Nixon pledged Wednesday the major goal of his new administration would be to try to unify the American people.

Nixon, in his first speech since winning Tuesday's election, said his administration would be an open one.

OPEN TO ALL

"Open to new ideas, open to men and women of both parties, open to the critics as well as those who support us," the 55-year-old president-elect said. "We want to bridge the generation gap. We want to bridge the gap between races."

"We want to bring America together and I am confident that this task is one that we can undertake and one in which we will be successful," Nixon said.

INSPIRED SIGN

Nixon said he was inspired by a sign he saw held by a teenager in Deshler, Ohio, when he visited the small community Oct. 22 while making a whistle-stop campaign tour of the state. The sign, held aloft in the dusk, said "Bring Us Together."

He said it was the one that touched him the most during his two months of campaigning which saw him travel more than 50,000 miles in 30 states.

OFFENERS' NOD Nixon held off making his victory statement until Hubert Humphrey conceded. He said he had received a "very gracious message" from the vice-president congratulating him, and said he also spoke with him by telephone.

"I congratulated him for his gallant and courageous fight against great odds," Nixon said.

"I admire a fighter, and he proved himself to be one. He never gave up and he gave us a good fight."

"I also told him that as he finished this campaign, that I know exactly how he felt. I know how it feels to lose a close one. Having lost a close one eight years ago and having won a close one this year, I can say this — winning's a lot more fun."

Nixon pledged to co-operate fully with President Johnson between now and his inauguration "in any activity that may be helpful in bringing peace to the world that we all want."

He said he had received a "very gracious" telegram from Johnson in which the president congratulated him and indicated his desire to be of assistance in the next administration.

"I look forward in the next administration to have a relationship with former President Johnson such as President Eisenhower has had with him," Nixon said.

"Those who have served in this high office, only those who have served in this office, can know the tremendous burden (of the job) and they have so much to offer in their years of what will be called retirement."

GOP Gains Slight

Democrats Keep Congress Reins

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

Richard Nixon Wednesday became the first incoming president in the 20th century to win the White House but fail to carry his party to control of Congress.

When the 91st Congress convenes Jan. 3, both House and Senate will be in Democratic hands as they have been since 1954.

With all but two of the 435 House races decided, Republicans showed a net gain only four seats, far short of the 30 they needed for control.

The GOP won seven Senate seats from the Democrats. But the Democrats took two seats from Republicans and maintained a solid Senate majority, although down from their pre-election margin of 63 to 37.

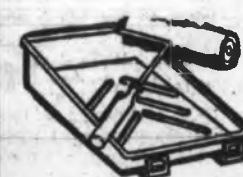

The election yielded an indicated House lineup of 249 Democrats and 192 Republicans, a GOP gain of less than 2 percent from the previous division of 247 Democrats and 188 Republicans.

The new Senate showed 8 Democrats and 42 Republicans.

Enlarged Effort Goal for Biafra

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons external affairs committee called Wednesday for expansion of observer operations in the Nigerian civil war and for Canadian readiness to help peacekeeping operations after a ceasefire.

The report, following a series of hearings on the war and on Canada's part in relief operations, was accompanied by separate statements from both NDP and Conservative members on the committee urging stronger Canadian action.

These two statements, in effect minority reports, urged government action to halt arms shipments to Nigeria and to work for a ceasefire through the United Nations and the Commonwealth.

ALL CHANNELS

The committee report also recommended that the government intensify efforts through all possible channels, including the Commonwealth and UN, to persuade Nigerian and Biafran authorities to accept further mediation.

But it stopped short of recommending formal UN action, saying steps should not be taken which would jeopardize the effectiveness of our relief operations.

Committee Chairman Ian Wain (L—Toronto St. Paul's) told a news conference after tabling the report in the Commons that committee members felt a Canadian effort to seek formal UN action would not be effective because they would not get support.

'FUTILE GESTURES'

Canada would destroy its credibility if it went around at the UN making "futile gestures," he said.

Canadian demands on Britain, Russia and France to halt arms shipments to Nigeria would also be futile, he said.

The Conservative statement said the committee report was unrealistic in not dealing with the arms question. It recommended the three countries and others be urged to stop shipments.

Canada should also seek action by Commonwealth prime ministers or foreign ministers to bring about a settlement, it said.

The Conservative members did not directly recommend a UN initiative, although they said legal experts have suggested a way in which a resolution could be put before the General Assembly.

"If we are to pay more than lip service to the United Nations as the only world instrument for the protection of human rights then Canada must utilize every avenue to bring issues of world concern before it," the statement said.

The NDP statement urged Canadian action at the UN proposing an immediate ceasefire, an international observer force, an end to arms shipments and a massive relief operation.

DEBATE LATER

After tabling of the report in the Commons, all parties agreed to set aside a day later this month for debate on it.

Conservative members of the committee said in a statement they do not disagree with the recommendations.

But they were unable to give unanimous approval because the committee's report was inadequate.

The Conservative MPs also said Prime Minister Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp should urgently attempt to get Commonwealth prime ministers to bring about a settlement of the war.

Supreme Court Withholds Jones Suit Judgment

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada Wednesday reserved judgment on an appeal involving a slander action against Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia.

George Jones, former head of the province's purchasing commission, is asking the high court to reinstate a trial judge's finding that he was slandered in remarks the premier made about him in March, 1965, to the Social Credit Association in Victoria.

Jones was awarded $15,000 in damages by the trial judge. The B.C. Court of Appeal, however, reversed the trial verdict.

John Robinette, appearing for the premier before the Supreme Court, argued today that Bennett was protected by the law of qualified privilege when he made his remarks.

Robinette said the premier was reporting to a group of his electors of his government's views on legislation coming before the B.C. legislature.

As such, the speech he made was protected by qualified privilege.

As long as Bennett's remarks contained no malice, he was protected from any legal action arising from what he said.

Robinette said Bennett had reviewed legislation coming before the B.C. legislature, including a bill to remove Jones from office. Jones had been charged with accepting benefits from persons doing business with the government but later was acquitted of the charge.

The bill to dismiss Jones was described in the Supreme Court as one of the hottest political issues in B.C. in 1965.

BASE FOR SUIT

The slander suit was based on these remarks the premier was reported to have said:

"I'm not going to talk about the Jones boy. I could say a lot, but let me just assure you of this: The position taken by the government is the right position."

Robinette said that the premier merely was assuring supporters that the government had done the right thing in introducing the bill to oust Jones.

NO EVIDENCE

He also argued that Bennett did not abuse the law of privilege in the remarks he made. Furthermore, there was no evidence of malice in what was said.

Robinette also said that the presence of two Victoria reporters did not take away the occasion of privilege.

In arguments Tuesday, Tom Berger, counsel for Jones, argued that the premier had "no honest belief" that Jones was unfit for his office.

Berger said the premier's remarks about his client not only had a defamatory meaning but could only be interpreted in that way.

Opposition:

Bennett Monument Meaningless Talk

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett's proposed "1,000 year monument" to his Social Credit administration was described Monday by the provincial opposition leader as "meaningless political talk."

Robert Strachan of the New Democratic Party said the premier's remarks to the Social Credit League's annual convention Saturday were just another example of the "nonsensical political speeches . . . he's always making."

LENGTHY TIME

Bennett told the convention he plans to set up funds next year so policies and programs of Social Credit will last 1,000 years.

Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGee said the special funds were just another device to hide surpluses.

He said the premier has been setting up special funds for years rather than show surpluses which would be embarrassing when the public was crying for schools and hospitals.

He estimated provincial revenues this year would total $1,000,000,000 and there would be a surplus of $100,000,000, to $140,000,000.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of French house builders ended a tour of Canada here. They had spent three days in Vancouver inspecting plywood and prefabricated housing plants. The tour was sponsored by the federal trade and commerce department.

Labor Can Help

Racial Trouble Near

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor was told Wednesday that Canada faces serious racial troubles unless action is taken now.

George McCurdy, human rights administrator of the federal labor department in Ottawa, told the BCFL's annual convention there is a real sense of urgency about racial injustices in Canada.

"Racial discrimination, prejudice and poverty are constant companions in our society," said Mr. McCurdy.

"We won't have to speculate on this grim prospect of racial disorders in our country if black, brown, red or yellow people have the same employment opportunities other people have in our society; if they have the same education opportunities . . . decent housing . . . social acceptance . . . are treated with the same dignity and respect as other citizens."

Mr. McCurdy said the federal Fair Employment Practices Act has served effectively to bring about integration of Canadian minorities.

But, he said, the act does not "articulate on the more profound stage of human rights, which reaches beyond the strict protection of legal rights."

Canadians must become involved in individual and collective action to fight social problems, he said.

Marine Pilots Weigh Commission Report

Part one of a royal commission report on pilotage will come under the close scrutiny of Canadian marine pilots and politicians in Ottawa next week.

A two-day seminar dealing with this part of the report will follow the Nov. 12 annual meeting of the Association of Canadian Marine Pilots. Among political figures expected to attend is Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

The dates for the meeting and seminar were announced in Victoria by Capt. C. J. Rhodes, secretary-treasurer of the western branch of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild. The pilots' association is affiliated with the guild.

One Victoria marine pilot, Capt. Anthony Appleyard, will attend the sessions, as will three from Vancouver and one from New Westminster.

Nothing Like a Peach

BY M. V. CHESNUT

Of all the fine fruits we can grow in our climate, I don't think any yields quite the same satisfaction as a well-grown peach. There is unquestionably a wonderful thrill in picking and eating your own sun-ripened apples and pears, but this thrill is enhanced a hundredfold with peaches, for it takes a bit of doing to raise good peaches. Together with the pride of accomplishment is the superb flavor of a tree-ripened peach as compared with the not-quite-ripe store-bought fruit.

There is a commonly held belief that in our cool climate you must train your peach tree against a sunny house wall. This is a good way to utilize a warm wall, for peaches love summer heat, but it isn't strictly necessary, for good peaches have been grown right out in the open, although the hazard of leaf-curt disease is greater.

Quite a few peach trees hereabouts are seedlings, grown from stones, and the peach is one of the very few fruits where this is practicable. A seed-grown peach tree will often start bearing fruit as early as its fifth year, whereas apple and pear seedlings may take as long as 15 years to reach bearing age.

But while it is possible to raise your own peach trees by sowing peach stones, there are many solid advantages in buying nursery-grown grafted trees. For one thing, your trees are probably two or three years old when you buy them, and will start bearing fruit that much sooner. Moreover, you are buying a named variety, of known performance, while a seedling is always something of a gamble. It isn't much fun to lavish tender care on a seed-grown tree for five years, only to find its fruit is stringy, flavorless or bitter.

All our local peach varieties are self-fertile, which means a single tree will bear fruit without a "mate" tree nearby. The variety J. H. Hale, common in Ontario but not much grown here, will not set fruit without cross-pollination from another variety.

There isn't too much difference in the three varieties except for the time of ripening. All are freestone kinds, with the flesh separating easily from the stone. All are a good size, round, highly colored, sweet and juicy and none of the woody or stringy texture often found in inferior kinds. Vedette is the earliest of the three, ripening around the third week in August, followed by Valiant, then Veteran.

Pacific Gold is earlier on two counts—it ripens earlier in the season, and it comes into bearing earlier in life, often producing fruit in its second year after planting. The flesh is a deeper yellow than in most peaches and is so sweet that much less sugar is required in canning or preserving.

Rochester, one of our best early freestone peaches, is sort of betwixt and between—it will set some fruit on its own, but bears bigger crops if given a companion tree of another variety. All other peach varieties can bear full crops even while living in single blessedness.

Thoroughly reliable in our climate are the three V's, Valiant, Vedette and Veteran. These are all children of the Elberta peach, bred and developed on the Niagara peninsula, but they have taken to our climate like a duck takes to water and have definite points of superiority over their parent, Elberta. Ronton's claim to fame is its resistance to the leaf-curt disease, so common in unsprayed peaches. I planted my first Ronton only last spring, so I have had no personal experience with this variety yet, but it is reported to bear excellent fruit. Several of my readers swear by Ronton as the ideal peach for the home garden.

Another fine peach for our climate is Red Haven, with superb quality freestone fruit and ripening earlier than any of our other varieties, sometimes as early as the first week in August.

ART BUCHWALD Reports Current Affairs

Power Behind the Throne

WASHINGTON — It is only natural, as the Johnson Administration nears its end, that magazine and book publishers should be descending on the White House to sign up everybody in sight for their memoirs.

The sidewalk in front of the White House is jammed these days with editors carrying satchels of money that they have been ordered to give out in advance to anyone who can offer insights into the Johnson years. The competition for memoirs is something fierce.

As I was leaving a White House briefing the other afternoon, several editors ran up to me at the gate and shoved contracts in front of my face.

"I don't work in the White House," I explained. "I don't know any more about what went on there in the last five years than you do."

Disappointed, they turned away from me and then rushed up to a man in overalls carrying a bag of tools.

"What do you do in the executive mansion?" "I'm an electrician," he said.

"I'll give you ten thousand dollars to write the story of how you wired the White House," the editor shouted.

"Fifteen thousand," a book publisher yelled. "If you tell us the inside story of how President Johnson made you change all the bulbs."

"Are you crazy?" the electrician said. "I've already been offered $25,000 by Life Magazine to write about the time the President blew a fuse during the Fubright Gulf of Tonkin hearings."

The editor's sign, the Look editor said, saying $1,000 bills. "We'll give you this, plus a percentage, if you write the inside story of when Johnson switched from AC to DC over Vietnam."

The electrician shook his head. "There are certain things between me and the President that I can't talk about, even after he leaves office. They're in my diary and that's where they're going to stay."

"You kept a diary?" a publisher asked. "Sure. How else would I know where all the plugs were? That's a big house."

"I'll give you $50,000 for the diary without reading it," the publisher said.

"Gosh," the electrician shook his head. "I don't know what to say. There's some stuff in there that's very personal, like the time I put in an extension cord for the President's electric blanket when Lynda Bird decided to tell her parents about her engagement to Capt. Robb."

"I'll give you $75,000," another publisher shouted. "What else is in the diary?"

The Harper and Row editor said, "I'll bid $100,000." The electrician looked confused. "Is it worth that much?"

"Of course. You'd be the first one to shed any light on the Pueblo incident." "I think I better talk this over with my agent," the electrician said. "All these offers are bewildering. I knew my memoirs were worth something, but I didn't think they would fetch $100,000."

"Why not?" the Putnam publisher said. "You controlled the power in the White House, didn't you?" "Now that you mention it," the electrician said, "I guess I did. What am I offered for the movie rights?"

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Iranians See Stars

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Jim Mithum, who looks like his dad, Robert, and Jim's constant companion, Wendie Wagner, are the talk of Tehran where Jim is one of the stars in The Heroes. Some people say they are married, but Jim denies this. I saw them together in London recently and Wendie was expecting an addition to her family in March. "I've now matured as a man and an actor," Jim says. "It's been 11 years since I worked with my father in Thunder Road, and I'd like to do another film with him." The 27-year-old Mithum is hoping for a role in Patton, as an interesting heavy.

The Heroes, by the way, is the biggest American movie to be made in Tehran and the Shah hopes it will be the beginning of more to come. Blonde, blue-eyed Elke Sommer, who stars in the film with Jim and Stuart Whitman, is a 100-days wonder for the dark-haired-and-eyed Iranians. When she walks down the main drag, a bazaar with five thousand shops, the combined gasp keeps husband Joe Hyams hopping. Everything Elke does is front-paged. Hyams is due in New York soon to promote his book, A Field of Buttercups, about the Poles who rescued Jewish children from the Warsaw ghetto.

A top actress of stage and screen has followed her husband down the no return road of alcohol. When last seen, two strangers were helping the weaving woman across a road near Central Park in New York. They were afraid she would be annihilated in the traffic.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Brigitte Bardot were two unlikely customers at Great Harbour Cay in the Bahamas, both looking for plots of land on which to build a house. Not together, of course, Brig was accompanied by her new admirer, a young French singer whose name escapes me, but does that matter? It will be a different name next month.

It wouldn't surprise me if Elizabeth Taylor announces her total retirement from her acting career when she completes her current film, The Only Game in Town with Warren Beatty. The reviews for her recent movies have not been too good, and she has all the millions she can ever spend. She has wanted to retire for the past decade, and I would imagine that now is as good a time as any.

Ernie Borgnine, winning awards in Italy where he is one of the stars in The Adventurers, Ernie, who as we all know by now has shed 60 pounds, plays Fat Cat in the Harold Robbins story. With the new enormous mustache he grew for the role, his wife Donna failed to recognize him when he met her at the airport in Rome.

The Inferior Ones

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

A story is told of a man who was being treated for many months by a psychiatrist for what he had thought was an "inferiority complex." After half a year of treatment, the psychiatrist called him in and suggested that he would not continue with him any longer.

"Why?" asked the man. "I thought that you were going to be able to cure me of my inferiority complex?" "I will tell you," replied the psychiatrist. "You don't have an inferiority complex. You are just plain inferior."

This may be a funny story to some, yet there is no doubt that most complexes which instill in us a feeling of inadequacy are based upon some inferiority in us—either real or imaginary.

Life is filled with illustrations of people who are obsessed with their own shortcomings. We remember Somerset Maugham's story Of Human Bondage. Philip has a club-foot, and this physical defect gives him a great sense of shame, whenever he has to come before people.

In the famous story, The Brothers Karamazov, Dmitri was afraid of one thing only—to take off his socks. He was on trial for murdering his father, but his greatest misery was not the accusation or even the public ordeal of the courtroom; it was the shame that overcame him when he was ordered to take off his socks.

Here is how the author describes that terrible moment: "They were very dirty—and now everyone could see it, and what was worse he disliked his feet. All his life he had thought both his big toes hideous. He particularly loathed the coarse, flat, crooked nail on the right one, and now they would all see it."

However much men may differ in their experiences of shame and fear, most are frightened by the prospect of coming in contact with people whenever they have to reveal themselves and to display that part of themselves which they themselves dislike or are ashamed of. What happens to such people? They are often afraid to face up to the real and ever-present tasks of life. There are those whose defects create a sense of inadequacy that longs to be overcome—but overcome in the wrong way. A typical example are many people who tend to be rather arrogant and bully-like. They falsely compensate by attempting to be everything that they really are not. They brag, they push, they shove, they hurt.

At heart, they are truly frightened people. But in their over-compensating, they play a fictitious, false role. They will never be tall at all, and they might as well learn to be big about it.

Then there are those who have no serious defect, but who imagine that they have. These people are even more difficult to deal with, because they create fraudulent mechanisms with which to deal with the world.

But a man who is fighting windmills because he thinks nobody loves him will never be at peace—not even in victory.

Such a man is never at home in the world, because he is never at home with himself. The thing that bothers him most—although he very rarely realizes it—is his general sense of inadequacy as a man, which he blames on imaginary faults that do not really exist.

Free-floating, unattached feelings of inadequacy usually find a place to land; they paralyze our mental muscles and make us powerless. Instead of attacking these feelings and overcoming them by positive action, such people usually attack all other people.

Instead of imagining ourselves as perennial victims, we need to know how to feel like heroes—who can defeat their own morbidities by shedding their imaginary faults and latching onto imaginative personal possibilities.

Oil Compensation Indicated

NEW YORK (CP) — Seven large oil companies announced plans Wednesday for possible compensation to countries for damage done by oil tanker spills off their coastlines.

The companies are British Petroleum Co. Ltd., Gulf Oil Corp., Mobil Oil Corp., Shell International Marine Ltd., Standard Oil Co. of California, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and Texaco Inc.

They said in a joint announcement the plan would permit tanker owners and countries to deal more effectively with oil tanker spills and major disasters such as the sinking off England's coast last year of the Torrey Canyon.

The plan would become effective when it is joined by companies representing 50 per cent of the world's privately owned tanker tonnage. The seven companies making the announcement account for 30 per cent.

Under the plan a tanker owner would be responsible for cleaning up any oil polluting a coastline as a result of an accident at sea which was the fault of the shipowner.

If the tanker owner could not clean up the pollution, the government could be reimbursed for reasonable costs, whichever The reimbursement would be limited to a maximum of $100 per gross registered ton of the ship or $10,000,000, whichever was less.

Three Alive, 25 Missing

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian and American planes searched the North Atlantic Wednesday for 25 men missing from a storm-tossed Norwegian tanker after an explosion and fire.

Three men were found alive on the tanker Etnesfjell Monday after last Thursday's fire and explosion. A body was found in the burned out engine room, the U.S. Coast Guard reported Wednesday. The dead man was tentatively identified as the chief engineer.

One of the eight American and Canadian Forces planes circled the area reported sighting a submerged white object, which could be one of the Etnesfjell's two aluminum lifeboats.

A Dutch tug was towing the disabled tanker to an undiscovered port in the United Kingdom, the coast guard said. It had started for Newfoundland but changed direction. The reason for the change was not given.

The coast guard cutter Abacon passed food, cigarettes and a radio to the survivors on the tanker, identified as Master Isak Isaksen, Chief Mate Helmar Sjarvik and Nils Berg.

The 16,575-ton tanker, empty except for ballast, had been bound to Botwood, Nfld., from Norway. The explosion and fire occurred about 350 miles south of Cape Farewell on the southern tip of Greenland.

China Claims Nixon Brings No Change

China led the initial world reaction Wednesday to the election of Richard Nixon as 37th president of the U.S., saying his election would bring no change in "the aggressive nature of the U.S. imperialism."

Prime Minister Trudeau, meanwhile, sent Nixon "congratulations and good wishes." Moscow Radio, reporting from Washington, said Nixon's victory was the result of a "protest vote" against the present U.S. government.

"The Republicans did not offer the voters a constructive program so the vote was not so much for the Republicans as against the Democratic party's candidate," the broadcast said.

In Saigon, many South Vietnamese officials welcomed Nixon's selection, expecting he would take a harder line toward North Vietnam than Hubert Humphrey. Elsewhere:

● A measure proposing to fluoridate Seattle water had a healthy lead of 97,053 votes for and 74,779 against, with only a simple majority needed for passage.

● Utah turned down a liquor-by-the-drink proposal, Nebraska rejected a measure to lower the voting age to 19 from 21, and Michigan approved and Illinois indicated approval of huge anti-pollution bills—$335,000,000 and $1 billion, respectively.

● Sen. Wayne Morse was only 1,406 votes behind his Republican opponent in Oregon, Republicans ended 10 years of Democrat Jesse Unruh's domination of the California legislature, and millionaire industrialist, Louis Ferre, who wants Puerto Rico to be the 51st U.S. state, appeared to have defeated former governor Luis Munoz Marin.

Don't Play Around Spiritualist Warns

VANCOUVER (CP) — The spirit world is no place for children.

That was the warning issued Wednesday by Reverend B. G. Bishop, who said she was prompted to make a statement after she saw ouija boards advertised under the heading of toys for children.

"I don't want one anywhere near me," said Mrs. Bishop, who said she has been a spiritualist for 45 years.

"It's a very easy means of communicating with the spirit people," she said. "It seems to bring on an uprush of the subconscious, you might say."

The president of International Spiritualist Alliance, she said she has had to treat people who have come under the influence of undesirable spirits as a result of using a ouija board.

A ouija board "operates" when a person places his fingers on a small board, called a planchette, which indicates as the spirit moves it—letters of the alphabet, spelling out messages from beyond.

A deluxe model sells for $2.98 over the toy counter.

Mrs. Bishop said that unless some action is taken, children may find "a potentially dangerous psychic game in their Christmas stocking this year."

three superficial knife wounds in the back when Theodore Harmon, 47, leaped onto the stage. He claimed Daniels owed him a $4,000,000 gambling debt but Daniels is not a gambler.

LOS ANGELES — Photographer Anthony Rizzo, 21, sued Barbra Streisand and her husband, actor Elliott Gould, for $200,000. He said Gould assaulted him to prevent a picture being taken after a movie premiere.

NORTH BAY, Ont. — Mrs. Andy Gervais pushed her rifle out the farmhouse window and shot a wolf 200 yards away. But the rifle recoiled, giving her a shiner.

ALDERGROVE — Staff Sgt. Mike Male, 26, turned down by the Canadian Armed Forces because he wore glasses, has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service with U.S. forces in Vietnam.

SAO PAULO — The Queen and Prince Philip arrived to spend two days of their official Brazilian visit here and neighboring Campinas.

OTTAWA — Solicitor-General George McRath said it cost the government more than $157,000 to bring charges against Hal Banks and 14 other members of the Seafarers International Union in 1964. The charge against Banks continues but the others were dismissed or withdrawn.

SURREY — A walkout by 200 students at Beagle junior high school ended when principal A. F. Hurt arranged an assembly for them to air protests against "teacher brutality." At the assembly, both Hurt and student council members said punishment is reasonable.

Indian Reserve Trailer Park Brings Concern

A trailer park on Indian reserve land on Craigflower Road is under fire from Panhandle neighbors.

Concerned about tax-free services to be provided for trailer-dwellers, Panhandle residents who amalgamated with Esquimalt in February have petitioned Esquimalt council to negotiate with the Indians.

A spokesman said they were also hoping the Metropolitan Board of Health would intervene to stop development which they said would add to pollution problems in the area.

MOST BEAUTIFUL

However, Songhees Chief John Albany said he planned to have the most beautiful trailer park on the island.

"It will be a showpiece," he promised.

He said his land was sewered and the Indian affairs department had been party to all agreements and plans.

ONE OF LEADERS

William Armour of 907 Aral is one of the leading petitioners.

He said residents felt that they would have an unfair tax burden, and were concerned that the park might be allowed to deteriorate.

"We shall have to provide schooling for the children in these trailer parks, while their parents contribute not one penny to school taxes," he said.

PER CAPITA

"The Indian affairs department makes per capita grants for Indian children in our schools, so they pay their way, but they won't be paying for the white children sheltering in the tax-free reserve lands," he said.

"We have been concerned for some time about the future use of the Songhees Reserve lands, which comprise an area of about 150 acres of very valuable property within 2½ miles of the city centre," said Mr. Armour, who took the petition to council.

Esquimalt council considered his letter in committee Monday night.

Mr. Armour said there had been numerous complaints about septic tanks along Craigflower Road, especially from motels and trailer parks.

"I don't want to see all these new trailer parks springing up to add to the problem."

"Some people say at least part of the reserve is on sewer. Others say there's no sewer. I seem to come up with a different answer wherever I go."

MORE TRAILERS

"We are concerned with the ever-increasing number of trailers being located on the reserve," he said.

"While we agree that these trailers are providing some immediate financial benefits to the Indians, we are of the opinion that far greater benefits could and would be derived if long-term planning and development was proceeded with."

He said one of the reasons residents were anxious to amalgamate with Esquimalt was the belief that council would initiate talks with the Indians for orderly development.

"The object of our letter is to spur Esquimalt council to commence negotiations with the Indians before there are such a large number of trailers on the reserve that it would be most difficult to change the pattern of development."

Just Ask

Arthritis Help There

By DON GAIN

"We get phone calls all the time," the physiotherapist said. "They all say the same thing. 'I have arthritis. I know nothing can be done for it.'"

"But we know something can be done," said Mrs. F. G. Baxter, physiotherapist in charge of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society clinic at Gorge Road Hospital.

"We know we can stop arthritis from progressing. We know we can teach people to accept it, to live with it and, hopefully, to improve it."

CAN'T SIT DOWN

"Movement is life, and you can't sit down on the job."

Tuesday, Mrs. Baxter was working with Silverio Nanni, who suffers from osteoarthritis of the hip. After giving him deep-heat short-wave treatment on his hip, she followed up with exercises with the help of a spring suspended from the ceiling.

"We're helping him with his walking," Mrs. Baxter said, "and showing him how he can cope with his job. He's not disabled. He doesn't use a cane or a crutch. The sooner we get at arthritis, the better."

The same day, Donna Bishop was giving Ron Lawson exercises, helping him to walk. Mr. Lawson is a paraplegic.

"We don't just treat people with arthritis and rheumatic conditions," Mrs. Baxter explained.

OTHER THINGS

"We're qualified to treat other things as well. We will treat anybody and everybody, regardless of financial status. We treat many people who have had strokes."

Mr. Lawson and Mr. Nanni were just two more patients who are helped at the rate of about 20 a day.

Very important, too, is the financial support from the Community Chest, of which CARS is an agency.

This year the estimated total budget for the agency in Greater Victoria is $49,000. Of this, $18,750 will be provided by the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal.

Canvassers are still collecting.

Three Cities

Prairie Mayors Remain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Voters in Saskatchewan cities were kind to their mayors Wednesday as Regina, Saskatoon and Weyburn all gave a new term to the incumbent by comfortable majorities.

Mayor Henry Baker of Regina, who doubles as a New Democratic Party member of the Saskatchewan legislature, nearly doubled the vote on alderman Jackie Hoag with Hector Watson, a distant third to win a sixth two-year term.

In Saskatoon, Mayor S. L. Buckwold was a runaway winner, easily topping the combined total of his opponents, Bernice Norman, J. R. Denike and Allan Jasper.

War Veterans Plan Parade

Members of the Canadian Scottish Regimental Association will meet on Humboldt Street in front of the Union Club about 11:45 a.m. after the main Remembrance Day service Monday at the Cenotaph. They will march to Pioneer Square for a short service before going to the Bay Street armory for a get-together from 12:40 to 2 p.m. Those who can't march will go directly to Pioneer Square.

Missionary Served In China

A former China missionary, Rev. William K. Amyot, who died here Monday at age 69, will be buried Friday at Royal Oak.

Mr. Amyot had lived in Greater Victoria since 1959.

He was born in Toronto and served in the Medical Corps during the First World War. Later he became one of the founders of the Scarborough Foreign Mission Society.

He entered the priesthood in 1927 and was posted to China, where he served for a decade.

He joined the Catholic Chinese Mission in Victoria in 1959, worked there until its close, and in 1964 became chaplain of St. Mary's Priory in Langford, where he died.

Szczawinski Funeral Today

Funeral service will be held at 3:15 p.m. today in Hayward's Funeral Chapel for Mrs. Mary Szczawinski, 788 Viaduct, who died Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. Szczawinski was the wife of provincial museum botanist Dr. Adam Szczawinski.

Co-operative Land Bank 'Only Bubble'

By IAN STREET, Legislative Reporter

An NDP spokesman charged Wednesday that the provincial government's land bank is nothing more "than a speculative bubble waiting to be burst."

Robert Williams, MLA for Vancouver East, issued a written statement which claimed the joint statement by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and Resources Minister Ray Williston on a pilot 1000 project for the proposed land bank did not stand up to scrutiny.

The NDP member charges:

- The land involved in the so-called land bank was partly reserved for park purposes earlier this year, and most of it is too steep to build on.

- The co-operative named to carry out the scheme is non-existent.

- The company that was named as financial adviser to the scheme is non-existent.

- The trade unions the government claimed were backing the scheme either deny any involvement whatever or have no commitment to the program. "The land bank in fact consists of no buildable land or land within a proposed regional park," Mr. Williams said. "The government has a memorandum of agreement with a non-existent co-op that is advised by a non-existent company with financial backing from trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Opinion on Parliament Hill about the election of Richard Nixon as United States president varies from apprehension to a feeling that it could be good for peace in Vietnam.

Lewis, his party's parliamentary leader, said he was disturbed by the election result because "Mr. Nixon has shown himself to be at least hawkish — if not a full-grown hawk — on Vietnam."

effect his election might have on the Paris peace talks."

Liberal David Anderson, freshman MP for Esquimalt-Saanich and former officer in the external affairs department, took a contrary view.

"Candidly, I think Mr. Nixon's election could improve the chances of success in Paris," he said. U.S. and North Vietnam representatives have been negotiating in Paris.

Anderson, who has travelled in the Far East and speaks Chinese, reasoned that the North Vietnamese regarded Hubert Humphrey as a somewhat weak leader. His election might have led them to stall and keep up the pressure in the hope of total victory.

"I think the North Vietnamese now will make the United States more seriously than if Mr. Humphrey had been elected," Anderson said. Thus, the North Vietnamese would be more likely to seek a peace settlement.

Canada Snaps Space Bomb

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian air defence camera has photographed the new Soviet space bomb in orbit, informed sources said Wednesday.

The authoritative British publication Jane's All The World's Aircraft reported last week that the Russian space bomb is more than six feet long and four feet in diameter.

The bomb can be fired into an orbit some 100 miles above the earth and can be commanded by remote control to drop onto any selected target in the world under its orbital path.

Officials here said the three-ton $100,000 Baker-Nunn camera operated by Air Defence Command at Cold Lake, Alta., can photograph an object the size of a basketball 50,000 miles from the earth.

Jane's says there have been at least 12 test launchings of space bombs by the Russians, the earliest being Jan. 25, 1967.

The bombs, apparently unarmed, re-entered the atmosphere before completion of one orbit.

Officials here have said that the orbital bomb could render useless the elaborate North American air defence network in Canada and the northern U.S.

The orbital or space bomb was originally described here as the "reverse missile." That is, instead of flying over north polar regions to North America, it could approach this continent from south polar regions, thus avoiding the ballistic missile early warning line and other detection systems.

There was no official confirmation that the Cold Lake camera has photographed the space bomb in flight.

North American Air Defence Command recently praised the Cold Lake unit for its accuracy of information on satellite locations.

The unit has "set standards for the Baker-Nunn space sensor system," said Col. W. B. Gerritz, commander of the U.S. Air Force's 73rd Aerospace Surveillance Wing which receives the Cold Lake reports.

Cold Lake is one of three such military sites in the world photographing and tracking satellites for NORAD's space defence centre at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Foursome Involved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Assets of a group of financial companies were frozen by court order Wednesday and parties of police seized truckloads of documents in a B.C. government investigation.

Firms involved were identified as Commonwealth Acceptance Corp. Ltd., Commonwealth Investors Syndicate Ltd., Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. and Diversified Income Fund, shares A and B.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan of British Columbia Supreme Court appointed a receiver to take control of assets but there was no immediate indication of what the investigation involved.

PROBE STARTED

Lawyer Sidney Cross, acting for the provincial government, said he had been advised that the attorney-general's department has begun an investigation into affairs of the companies.

Up to 70 RCMP men, some called from off-duty, spent hours loading documents into vehicles and late Wednesday night had a truck outside the head office of Commonwealth Acceptance.

FIRMS' ASSETS

Mr. Justice Ruttan named chartered accountant A. D. Stanley as trustee, receiver and manager of the assets of the companies, at the request of Mr. Cross.

Mr. Cross said banks and trust companies had been advised not to withdraw or deal in assets of the companies.

Three Cities

Prairie Mayors Remain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Voters in Saskatchewan cities were kind to their mayors Wednesday as Regina, Saskatoon and Weyburn all gave a new term to the incumbent by comfortable majorities.

Mayor Henry Baker of Regina, who doubles as a New Democratic Party member of the Saskatchewan legislature, nearly doubled the vote on alderman Jackie Hoag with Hector Watson a distant third to win a sixth two-year term.

In Saskatoon, Mayor S. L. Buckvold was a runaway winner, easily topping the combined total of his opponents, Bernice Norman, J. R. Denike and Allan Jasper.

Mayor Tom Hart of Weyburn almost doubled the vote of his only challenger, Alderman Charles Porter.

Island Man Dies After Fight

NANAIMO — RCMP are investigating a stabbing death in Nanaimo.

An unidentified man was pronounced dead in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital shortly after 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Police indicated there was a fight in which one man hit another with a pop bottle, and the second struck back with an eight-inch carving knife, inflicting a stomach wound.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian relief flights into Biafra have been grounded for the last "two or three days" because Biafran authorities have not given clearance for day flights, Defence Minister Cadieux said Wednesday. (See also Pages 6, 29.)

Cadieux told reporters the suspension of flights had not resulted from Tuesday night's incident in which a Swedish relief plane was bombed and strafed on a Biafran airstrip, with several casualties.

Czechs Burn Flags

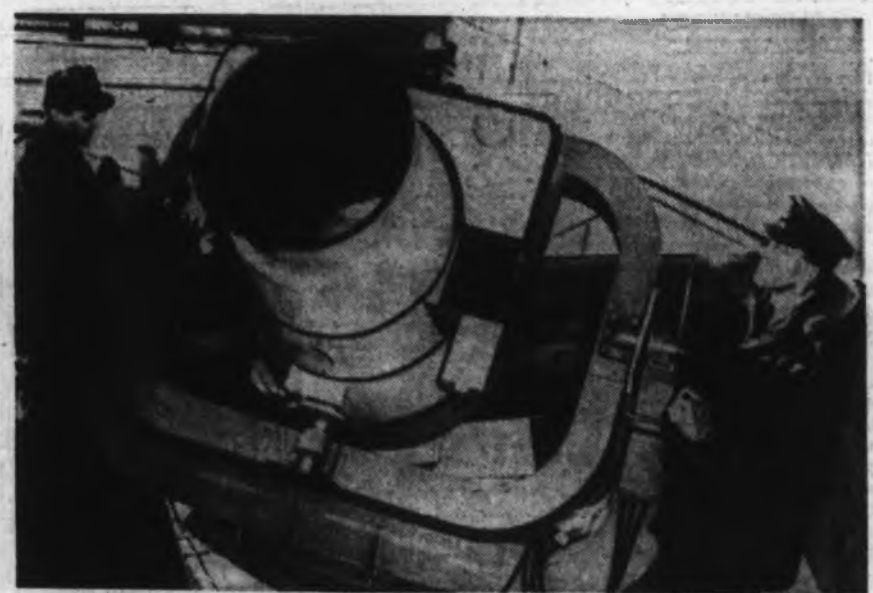

BRATISLAVA (UPI) — Thousands of jeering students Wednesday night ripped to shreds and burned Soviet flags in the streets of Bratislava, Russian troops made no move to stop the demonstrators.

In Prague, a crowd of 150 by-standers, held back by police officers standing shoulder to shoulder, jeered and whistled when Soviet loudspeakers sped to the Prague theatre with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov and Soviet Ambassador Stepan Chervonenko.

The demonstrations in protest against the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia came on the eve of celebrations marking the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Rapist Sent To Prison

NANAIMO (CP) — James Donald Mills, 24-year-old Nanaimo golf course greens superintendent, Wednesday was sentenced to five years in the B.C. Penitentiary for raping a 58-year-old woman visiting Nanaimo from Belfast.

Sentence was imposed by Mr. Justice Thomas A. Dohm after a B.C. Supreme Court jury took almost four hours to reach a guilty verdict.

The woman was raped on the seventh green of the golf course about 1 a.m. July 23.

"You executed this crime deliberately and with a high degree of violence," declared the judge.

He said he was taking into account Mills' youth and clear record in fixing sentence.

Founding Meeting

Gold River Chamber Headed by Douglas

GOLD RIVER—Robert Douglas is the first president of the Gold River and District Chamber of Commerce. The elections were held following a dinner meeting at the Gold River Chalet. Other officers elected were Alex Riddell, vice-president; Rev. D. McKay, secretary and Harold Fitzmaurice, treasurer.

Committee chairmen are: Sinclair Lewis, publicity; Alfred Harvey, education; Dave Huffer, tourist visitors; Ken Wolfe, roads and transportation; Ed Kofinow, finance and membership; Ken Welte, industrial development; Gar Westlake, civic chairman; Tim Timmons, fish and game; Rick Darnell, retail merchants.

More than 60 people attended the dinner meeting, including visitors from Campbell River and Port Hardy.

Reg Clark, manager of the B.C. Branch, Canadian Chamber of Commerce, was the guest speaker. He said "You have the beginnings of a nice town here. The future of the town is what people make it. If they don't promote this community no one else will do it for them."

"Businessmen must work together to give better service to the community. Competition is not down the street, but in the next town. The communities that recognize this and do something about it are those that will prosper."

Alderman Tom Lampard delivered a message of congratulations from the council.

Mr. Douglas announced that regular monthly meetings will be held the first Wednesday of each month.

Inquest Tonight In Blast Death

A coroner's inquest will open in McCall Bros. funeral home at 7:30 p.m. today into the death of Anton Sorensen, 60, of 2843 Scott Street, who died Nov. 2 after being caught in a dynamite explosion Oct. 17 on Mayne Island.

An experienced blaster, Mr. Sorensen was employed by A. J. Barr, contractors, a firm he had worked for for the past seven years.

At the preliminary hearings, arguments will be presented by both parties before two judges sitting together, who will decide whether the petition should be dismissed or warrants further investigation, a spokesman for Mr. Barnett said.

Mr. Barnett said Wednesday night a hole was blasted and some excess rock was left. Mr. Sorensen went down into the hole with a rock drill to clear up the debris, then the explosion took place.

The gang ran back to the hole to find Mr. Sorensen seriously injured.

He was given first aid by a nurse, then flown to Victoria's Royal Jubilee Hospital by helicopter.

Mr. Sorensen had celebrated his 60th birthday four days before the accident.

He is survived by a wife and a daughter.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre will preside at the inquest, which will be conducted by the RCMP detachment from Ganges.

Mr. McKinnon is the owner of approximately 30 acres just north of Duncan on the Trans-Canada Highway.

He said "The flooding conditions are getting so bad in the Somers Lake area that I have to raise the land because the way it is now it is rendered useless."

"Every year it floods so badly I can't keep stock, fences or buildings. The people in this district have been trying to get rivers and creeks cleaned out for years."

Mr. McKinnon is having the soil dug out on approximately four acres by a dragline operated by 72-year-old Josie Evans.

"He is as active as a young man," said Mr. McKinnon. He has been a shovel man all of his life.

Some of the soil is dug as much as 10 feet deep.

The four acres are the exact site where the Island Lumber Company had its mill in 1910.

Halloween Aftermath

Short-Lived Protest Parallels Sentencing

NANAIMO—About eight senior high school students began a picket march in front of magistrate's court Wednesday morning while several of their friends were sentenced for being members of an unlawful assembly.

They began their march just before 10 a.m. and were dispersed by two parents by 11 a.m.

One parent sent his son down Fitzwilliam Street toward the family car.

Another parent drew his son from the picket line and explained to him that he was taking part in another unlawful assembly, and that he could well be charged with attempting to influence the court. The boy's face fell when he heard the statement from one he could trust.

"Hey fellows, break it up. This is against the law too," the boy told his companions.

Before the group broke up they admitted they had planned the gathering and had printed the crude signs in hopes of getting preferential treatment for their friends.

One sign accusing news of being "biased" was painted without consulting the dictionary. The group admitted they thought they had spelled biased correctly.

Inside the court, Rodney Stewart Gillet, 18, of 440 Wesley Street, and David Louis Trobridge, 18, of 58 Eaton Street, were both given one-year suspended sentences with strings attached.

They must both submit 1000-essay essays on Why You Should Respect Your Law Enforcement Agencies, Magistrate Stan Wardill told them. He said the essays must be submitted by Dec. 31.

'Basically Good Bunch'

He also said they must spend 50 hours in community work and come to the police office for four hours each Friday night for a month "just to see what kind of nonsense the police have to put up with."

Both were placed on $250 cash bonds and had their drivers' licenses placed in control of a probation officer.

"Basically you're all a good bunch of high school students," Magistrate Wardill told them. He added that it was unfortunate that they were caught up in the Halloween fracas of 300 milling young people at Northbrook Shopping Mall. He added the two should remember that that night is really reserved for very young children.

Later in the afternoon David Charles Brown, 18, of 31 Gillespie Street, was given the same sentence.

The right to change pleas was denied three other 18-year-olds who had earlier pleaded guilty to the same offence.

Ronald Hutchings, of 30 Giggleswick Place; Bruce Gerald Newman, of 936 Granville, Nanaimo; and Patrick Billington, of 1045 Lantzville, each individually testified in almost identical words.

"I just thought it was for being there," was their claim to why they pleaded guilty to the charge Friday.

Since then, they admitted, the fact that the Criminal Code charge can bring up to two years in jail was explained.

They were also apprised of the residual effects of a criminal record.

Job Denial Possibility

Visas, bonding government jobs or positions as teachers and many other professional jobs may be denied them because of a criminal record, authorities have publicly explained.

Sentencing was adjourned to Nov. 19 at 4 p.m.

Hutchings claimed Const. Pete Sabo said a guilty plea would mean a lighter sentence.

However the other two did not support this claim.

Const. Sabo said he was asked what charge was being made and what the charge meant. He said he got his copy of the Criminal Code and read to them. He said he even allowed several youths to read the code for themselves.

He had not been one of the arresting officers and had just come on duty, he said, and was as ignorant of what was actually happening as the prisoners.

As a favor, he asked fellow officers for information and passed it on to the prisoners.

Magistrate Wardill, in refusing the application, said each had been asked if he understood the charge, and he was convinced their affirmative answers were the truth.

Comox Council Gives Nod

Treatment Plant Approved

COMOX — Construction of a primary sewage treatment plant at Comox has been decided upon by Comox town council.

The action was taken at the regular meeting Nov. 4.

A timetable will be set up for construction of the plant, as directed by the Upper Island health unit.

Monetary help for financing the construction is available from NHA and the provincial government, Municipal Clerk Eileen Turnbull told council.

The amount from the government was not known at this time, she said.

A bylaw for interim financing received first, second and third reading and gives council power to borrow up to $250,000 to finance improvements and extensions to existing water and sewage systems. A large portion of the money will go to service an area recently taken into the town through boundary extension.

New rules have been made for subdivision control. They contain procedures and specifications about lot sizes, major and minor streets, lands, sewage and water installations and drainage.

Council voted $1,000 for improvement to existing facilities at the Comox boat launching site.

Eileen Turnbull was appointed returning officer for the municipal elections in December and the place of nominations and poll will be the Municipal Hall.

He said if the present ruling is upheld the development would be made uneconomical.

Former Ald. Hamish Mutter objected to a proposed public open space zoning which would affect "about 50 per cent of my property and would cut right across my driveway."

"How can you pass a bylaw without legally defined lines?" he said.

The public open space section in the bylaw is designed to preserve the public recreational and tourist potential of that part of the Cowichan River within the city of Duncan, to preserve trees contributing to the amenity of the city, to prevent development on low lying lands subject to flooding or on steep slopes, and to prevent development in areas required for street widening.

Revised Budget Pushes Total To $3,481,521

NORTH COWICHAN—Council Wednesday night approved the 1968 revised annual budget which shows an increase of $39,330, pushing the total to $3,481,521.

Municipal clerk A. Vande Casteyen said "It is the revised budget for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31."

Largest increases were: social welfare, $30,000, and public works, $4,200.

Mr. Vande Casteyen said in reference to public works "maintenance costs have risen and in order to complete the year an additional sum of $35,000 was added. However, by reducing other items within the public works budget the net increase amounts to $14,200."

Commenting on the largest increase item, the clerk pointed out "the municipal share of the cost for the first three months for social welfare was based on 33 cents per capita. In April the sum was increased to 74 cents per capita and in September this year the cost increased to 89 cents per capita."

"In other words the cost increased from $3,426 to $3,241 per month."

To lower the total increase from $55,877 to $39,330 decreases were necessary in general government, $4,200; recreation and community services, $1,950; miscellaneous, $8,267, and other, $2,150.

Briefly discussing the recently defeated $850,000 recreation bylaw Ald. Dennis Hogan told council a joint meeting between the North Cowichan and city of Duncan councils and the two communities' recreation commissions will be held tonight to air views regarding future recreational development in this area.

The Sept. 26 recreation bylaw passed in the city of Duncan, but failed in the southend of North Cowichan and the unorganized areas south of Duncan.

The two recreation commissions last Wednesday suggested the joint meeting and recommended to hold another recreation vote on a similar bylaw with modifications.

'Hair Will Come Down'

In reply to a question from acting mayor Gerry Smith whether or not the Thursday night meeting is open, Ald. George Whittaker suggested it should be closed because "a lot of hair will come down."

Joint recreation commissions chairman Pat Rogers, who was not at the municipal council meeting, announced later in the afternoon the meeting, to be held at Duncan city hall, will be open to the public.

Briefly touching on the bylaw's defeat, Ald. Margaret Robertson noted the defeat was "just a matter of money" because people are concerned with rising costs, particularly with a forthcoming school building referendum bylaw early next year which may be as high as $1,000,000.

Regarding a 25-lot land assembly project at Chemainus, council received a copy of a letter from provincial director of housing and urban renewal J. T. Williams to the manager of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, C. J. Dowling.

Mr. Williams said his department has reviewed and discussed the proposal and concluded the proposed area is suitable for development.

"There is strong evidence of demand for serviced residential property."

The province concurs with the request and CHMC is requested to carry out investigations.

Acting mayor Smith offered congratulations to the Chemainus Chamber of Commerce and to the Chemainus Ratepayers' and Citizens' Association, both actively engaged in this proposed land assembly project.

Ald. Hogan advised council the SPCA group is asking for "revenue based on a more solid formula" and the requested financial assistance should 50 cents per capita which would amount to about $5,000 per year from North Cowichan. The 1968 budget provided for $3,700. Ald. Hogan said the local SPCA group covers the city of Duncan, the municipality and the unorganized areas.

Acting Mayor Smith remarked the police expressed dissatisfaction with the service supplied by the SPCA.

"What is going to happen? Maybe we have to have a pound keeper for the municipality alone."

Not Municipal Problem

Ald. Robertson explained in the unorganized areas certain pound areas are set by the provincial government. "It is a very unsatisfactory situation, but it is not a municipal problem."

Ald. Hogan said the SPCA promises good service if sufficient funds are made available.

In his monthly report Cowichan sector civil defence coordinator E. C. Bolin said a group of 12 men is being trained now in firefighting by members of the city of Duncan volunteer fire brigade.

In other business: Council decided to give its support to the Cowichan airport society which requests that council accept in principle the acquisition and operation of a proposed airport site on Vaux Road in the Glenora district and members on the Cowichan Valley Regional Board will also be asked for their support.

Ald. Robertson suggested if no further information is forthcoming from the Ladysmith school board regarding an additional member from North Cowichan on that board the matter should be pursued. The school board advised council the matter is still being investigated. Crofton ratepayers will be informed that a meeting to which December civic election candidates would be invited should be postponed from the suggested date, Nov. 13 because nominations do not close until Nov. 25.

Ald. Whittaker told council leaders for the proposed ambulance building will be called in a few days and he remarked "it seems costs will be something less than anticipated."

A request from the Crofton community centre society to give consideration in the 1969 budget for the construction of an additional dug-out, washroom facilities and concession stand at the Crofton sports field will be referred to the North Cowichan recreation commission.

Dec. 18 has been set as the date for the court of revision for the southern sewer area and special areas.

Musqueam Band Bid

Cowichan Indians Agree to Centre

DUNCAN—Members of the Cowichan Indian band at their latest general meeting have agreed to accept the proposal of Musqueam Enterprises for the development of a shopping centre in the vicinity of the old armories.

Cowichan band secretary Mrs. Diane Modeste said Musqueam band manager Earl Smith outlined the proposals by Musqueam Enterprises Ltd. Mr. Smith explained Musqueam Enterprises would carry out the planning, get the tenants, arrange the mortgages and construct the centre.

On completion, the centre will be turned over to the Cowichan Indian band. It is hoped construction will start next spring.

In other business: Council agreed that the North Cowichan municipality maintains Boys Road as a public access and negotiations are under way to have it gazetted as a public road.

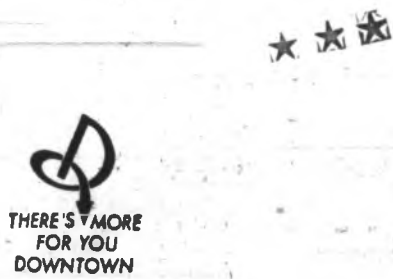

SALMON FISHING

Band manager Ross Modeste represented the Cowichan band during the three-day conference at Nanaimo to discuss proposed changes to the Indian Act.

Copies of new regulations for the B.C. salmon fishing industry and an information bulletin regarding salmon vessel licence control program are available for distribution to band members who are engaged in the fishing industry.

Co-operative Land Bank 'Only Bubble'

By IAN STREET, Legislative Reporter

An NDP spokesman charged Wednesday that the provincial government's land bank is nothing more "than a speculative bubble waiting to burst."

Robert Williams, MLA for Vancouver East, issued a written statement which claimed the joint statement by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and Resources Minister Ray Williston on a pilot loco project for the proposed land bank did not stand up to scrutiny.

The NDP member charges:

- The land involved in the so-called land bank was partly reserved for park purposes earlier this year, and most of it is too steep to build on.

- The co-operative named to carry out the scheme is non-existent.

- The company that was named as financial adviser to the scheme is non-existent.

- The trade unions the government claimed were backing the scheme either deny any involvement whatever or have no commitment to the program.

"The land bank in fact consists of no buildable land or land within a proposed regional park," Mr. Williams said. "The government has a memorandum of agreement with a non-existent co-op that is advised by a non-existent company with financial backing from trade

Hawk or Peace Hope?—MPs

Opposite Reactions Greet U.S. Presidential Result

OTTAWA (CP) — Opinion on Parliament Hill about the election of Richard Nixon as United States president varies from apprehension to a feeling that it could be good for peace in Vietnam.

New Democrat David

Lewis, his party's parliamentary leader, said he was disturbed by the election result because "Mr. Nixon has shown himself to be at least hawkish — if not a full-grown hawk — on Vietnam."

"We are worried about the effect his election might have on the Paris peace talks."

Liberal David Anderson, freshman MP for Esquimalt-Saanich and former officer in the external affairs department, took a contrary view.

"Candidly, I think Mr. Nixon's election could improve the chances of success in Paris," he said. U.S. and North Vietnam representatives have been negotiating in Paris.

Anderson, who has travelled in the Far East and speaks Chinese, reasoned that the North Vietnamese regarded Hubert Humphrey as a somewhat weak leader. His election might have led them to stall and keep up the pressure in the hope of total victory.

"I think the North Vietnamese now will take the United States more seriously than if Mr. Humphrey had been elected," Anderson said. Thus, the North Vietnamese would be more likely to seek a peace settlement.

Orbiting Soviet Ace Card

Canada Snaps Space Bomb

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian air defence camera has photographed the new Soviet space bomb in orbit, informed sources said Wednesday.

The authoritative British publication Jane's All The World's Aircraft reported last week that the Russian space bomb is more than six feet long and four feet in diameter.

The bomb can be fired into an orbit some 100 miles above the earth and can be commanded by remote control to drop only on selected target in the world under its orbital path.

Officials here said the three-ton $150,000 Baker-Nunn camera operated by Air Defence Command at Cold Lake, Alta., can photograph an object the size of a basketball 50,000 miles from the earth.

Jane's says there have been at least 12 test launchings of space bombs by the Russians, the earliest being Jan. 25, 1967.

The bombs, apparently unarmed, re-entered the atmosphere before completion of one orbit.

Officials here have said that the orbital bomb could render useless the elaborate North American air defence network in Canada and the northern U.S.

The orbital or space bomb was originally described here as the "reverse missile." That is, instead of flying over north polar regions to North America, it could approach this continent from south polar regions, thus avoiding the ballistic missile early warning line and other detection systems.

There was no official confirmation that the Cold Lake camera has photographed the space bomb in flight.

North American Air Defence Command recently praised the Cold Lake unit for its accuracy of information on satellite locations.

The unit has "set standards for the Baker-Nunn space sensor system," said Col. W. B. Garlitz, commander of the U.S. Air Force's 73rd Aerospace Surveillance Wing which receives the Cold Lake reports.

Cold Lake is one of three such military sites in the world photographing and tracking satellites for NORAD's space defence centre at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Foursome Involved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Assets of a group of financial companies were frozen by court order Wednesday and parties of police seized truckloads of documents in a B.C. government investigation.

Firms involved were identified as Commonwealth Acceptance Corp. Ltd., Commonwealth Investors Syndicate Ltd., Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. and Diversified Income Fund, shares A and B.

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan of British Columbia Supreme Court appointed a receiver to take control of assets but there was no immediate indication of what the investigation involved.

PROBE STARTED

Lawyer Sidney Cross, acting for the provincial government, said he had been advised that the attorney-general's department has begun an investigation into affairs of the companies.

Up to 70 RCMP men, some called from off-duty, spent hours loading documents into vehicles and late Wednesday night had a truck outside the head office of Commonwealth Acceptance.

FIRMS' ASSETS

Mr. Justice Ruttan named chartered accountant A. D. Stanley as trustee, receiver and manager of the assets of the companies, at the request of Mr. Cross.

Mr. Cross said banks and trust companies had been advised not to withdraw or deal in assets of the companies.

Mr. Stanley of West Vancouver, who became president of Commonwealth Trust at the beginning of August, said:

"I have had no sleep for the last 48 hours as a result of this and I have been told to say nothing for the next 24 hours. The attorney-general is planning a press release for Friday."

IN ADVANCE

In Victoria, Gilbert Kennedy, deputy attorney-general, was reported to have conferred with RCMP officers until after 3 a.m. Wednesday in advance of the raids.

He could not be reached Wednesday night. His wife said: "He had hardly any sleep at all and we finally managed to get him to go to bed."

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson is in Regina on other business.

Most top officers of the companies could not be reached by phone.

'BY SURPRISE'

One who was, Mrs. Margaret A. Harling of Vancouver, said: "This has all taken me completely by surprise."

Mrs. Harling, a lawyer, is listed as second vice-president and associate secretary of Diversified Income Securities Ltd.; treasurer and director of Centennial Mortgage Corp.; director of Commonwealth Trust Co., Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. and Commonwealth Acceptance Corp.

Island Man Dies After Fight

NANAIMO — RCMP are investigating a stabbing death in Nanaimo.

An unidentified man was pronounced dead in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital shortly after 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Police indicated there was a fight in which one man hit another with a pop bottle, and the second struck back with an eight-inch carving knife, inflicting a stomach wound.

Relief Flights Off

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian relief flights into Biafra have been grounded for the last "two or three days" because Biafran authorities have not given clearance for day flights, Defence Minister Cadieux said Wednesday. (See also Pages 6, 29.)

Cadieux told reporters the suspension of flights had not resulted from Tuesday night's incident in which a Swedish relief plane was bombed and strafed on a Biafran airstrip, with several casualties.

Czechs Burn Flags

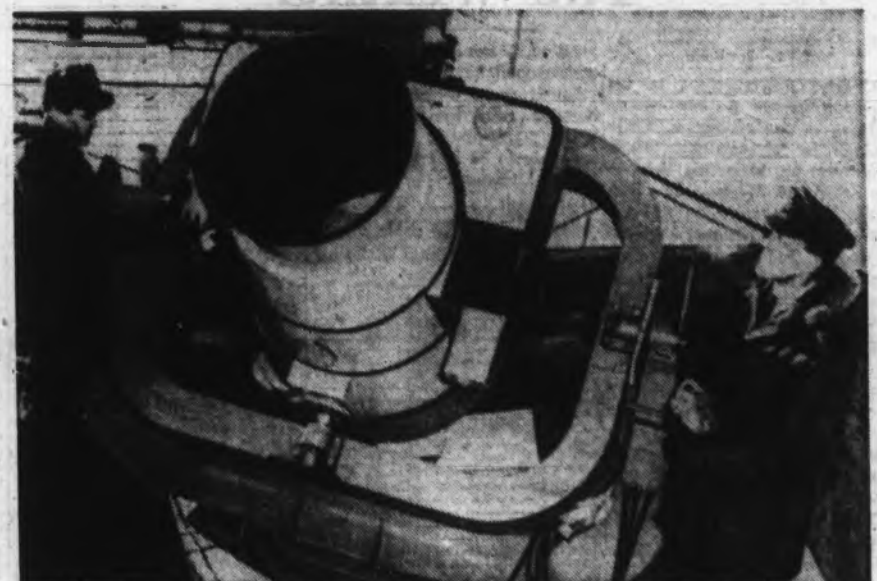

BRATISLAVA (UPI) — Thousands of jeering students Wednesday night ripped to shreds and burned Soviet flags in the streets of Bratislava. Russian troops made no move to stop the demonstrators.

In Prague, a crowd of 150 bystanders, held back by police officers standing shoulder to shoulder, jeered and whistled when Soviet limousines sped to the Prague theatre with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Knebtsov and Soviet Ambassador Stepan Chernomir.

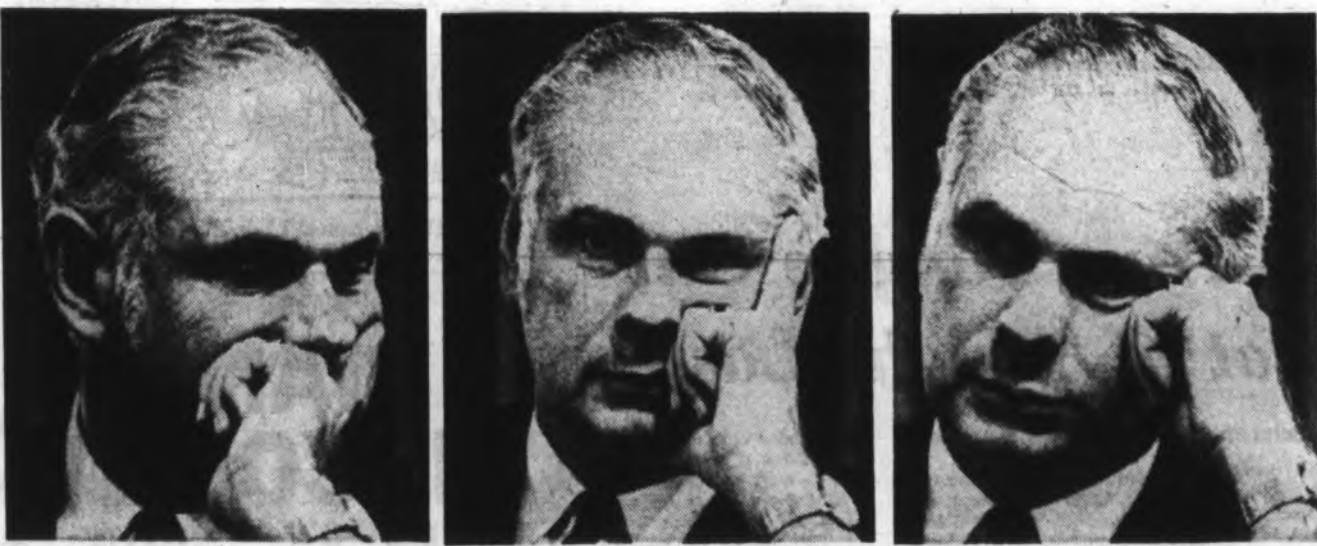

The demonstrations in protest against the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia came on the eve of celebrations marking the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The protests began in this Slovakian capital when an esti-

B.C. Told on Housing:

Use Pension Funds As Mortgage Boost

By IAN STREET

A member of the federal task force on housing suggested here Wednesday that provincially administered pension funds be invested in mortgages as one solution to the housing crisis in B.C.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell replied on behalf of the provincial government that top priority is given to investing pension funds in schools, hospitals and hydro. Someone in the audience shouted, "Mostly hydro!"

"I would disagree with that statement," Mr. Campbell said. He later repeated that the priority given to new schools and hospitals in this area of provincial investment "is likely to remain for several years." But he indicated the government planned new assistance to prospective home owners at the next session.

W. Peter Carter of Montreal, a member of the federal task force on housing and urban development, asked the minister whether he thought it would not be a good idea if some of the $90,000,000 to $100,000,000 in pension funds invested by B.C. annually was diverted into home mortgages.

Current Crisis

"We have a crisis in housing," said Mr. Carter. "Mortgage money must be increased, and by investing pension funds in mortgages we could allow people to have a debt-free house on retirement and have them contributing to their own pension funds by paying interest on the mortgage."

Mr. Campbell replied that B.C. had more pension funds to invest than other provinces because they were fully funded. He added, "We in B.C. have never taken the view that anyone but the federal government has 100 per cent control over credit in Canada and over national financial policies. If that is to be questioned, I suggest we could spend all afternoon on this discussion."

In Five Years

Mr. Carter added, however, that pension funds invested across Canada would amount to $14 billion over the next five years. "The governments who make these investments are not only responsible to the pension fund contributors — they have a wider social responsibility to invest some of this money in the mortgage market."

In his brief, Mr. Campbell suggested to the hearing that both B.C. and Ottawa should make financial commitments to public housing projects, then turn over the finances to the B.C. Housing Management Commission, which represents all three levels of government, to carry out the schemes using local planners. This would cut through red tape, speeding projects and cutting costs, the minister said.

Special Areas

Mr. Campbell also asked federal authorities to lend money to municipalities who wish to upgrade special urban areas. He stressed that the housing and urban development problems would only be solved if all governments attacked them co-operatively. Briefs were received from professional and community groups as well as from representatives of deserted wives, low-income mothers, and Indians.

Mrs. Sarah Siple, president of the Fernwood Ladies Group, told the commission there should be a centre for deserted wives and their children who lose their homes. It should function like centres for rehabilitation of alcoholics and provide help "at a crucial time when the family is under fire."

Mother of Six

The group's vice-president, mother of six, Mrs. June Akehurst said she had no time for fancy talk. "We need homes and we need them now. We have to have some-thing to put our kids. We need them now — not tomorrow. You men have all the brains, much more than I'll ever have, so you'd better do something."

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, who heads the federal task force, thanked the women for their "very moving" submission. He said: "We hope to be able to stretch the available dollars for home construction so that, if not in a few days or weeks, but within a few months we will be able to increase the supply of housing very dramatically. That is why we are here."

The task force members also came under fire from social worker Reg Clarkson, representing the Victoria Low Income Group. He told them: "After listening to you I'm afraid the poor are not going to get much help. I hope you make an effort in your final presentation to bring home to Canadians that there are real poor in our midst."

Most Obvious

"I know there are priorities and no dollars, but unless people are willing to pay, this social injustice will continue," Dr. Doris Boyle, a member of the task force from the Maritime, said Mr. Clarkson's remarks were "unjust" because they indicated that the task force didn't care about human need.

"Government cannot solve every problem, no matter how compassionate it may be," she said. "And even if it could, government wouldn't do it. Sometimes the most obvious and superficial solutions are not the best."

Mr. Hellyer said too often the task force had found that suggestions for solving the housing crisis simply boiled down to raising costs, and added this wasn't the answer. "We must have more productivity, he said. 'The available dollar must be stretched. The price of money must be brought down, the cost of construction and land must be brought down. It is a difficult. We don't want a result that merely brings an increase in taxes."

Molly Daniels, a 19-year-old nurse's aide, made an individual submission on behalf of Indians who came to Victoria from remote areas of the province and the Yukon and found it difficult to get accommodation.

A study of 154 such cases, she said, showed families averaged eight people crowded into four rooms. Three-quarters were either drawing pensions or on welfare and those who did have jobs were generally low paid. Some were brought here by authorities for medical treatment and 120 others were students boarding in private homes, usually with Indian families.

Miss Daniels asked the commission to provide "encouragement, advice and financial backing" for Indians in cities, and particularly those who will board other Indians.

Same Interest

George Burnham, making another individual submission, said families who needed homes should be offered mortgages at the same low interest-between three-quarters and 11 per cent — charged on money sent abroad by Canada under the Colombo Plan.

He was rebuked by Mr. Hellyer, who said Canadians must never forget there were people in other countries far worse off than themselves who must be helped.

F. W. Nicholas, a consulting architect and former federal director of housing, suggested sale of non-taxable, 4 per cent federal bonds exclusively for housing and suggested the government enter partnership with private mortgage firms on a 50-50 basis.

UVic Planner

J. A. Webb, director of campus planning for the University of Victoria, said more federal funds should be made available for student housing. But Dr. Boyle observed: "I wonder if we aren't making life a little too easy for students."

Mrs. May Campbell, speaking on behalf of Silver Threads, said the organization felt it should have more federal help in providing low-cost housing for the elderly. Brian Tobin, speaking for the Community Welfare Council, said more information should be made available to the public on services provided by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Tory Raps Inquiry:

Canadians Tired Of Buck-Passing

People are sick of buck-passing, squabbling, red tape, task forces, royal commissions and all the machinery which obstructs housing reform in Canada, Victoria Conservatives were told Wednesday.

Howard Gratfey, former Conservative MP and parliamentary secretary to the minister of finance, said the travelling housing inquiry, which sat in Victoria Wednesday, had enough information already to enable the government to get moving.

"Two years ago Mr. Pearson proposed a council on housing. Last year we had a travelling symposium and also last year a federal-provincial conference on housing, which went on the rocks because of money problems."

TASK FORCE

"This year we have a cross-country task force — another travelling circus — and still nothing has been done," Mr. Gratfey said to his audience of about 50 party stalwarts during an Empress Hotel reception.

Describing himself as "an Opposition presence," appointed by Conservative leader Robert Stanfield to follow the inquiry, the speaker said it was well known that obstructions to home construction in Canada were the high costs of materials, land and money.

Knowing this, the government did nothing to eliminate the 11-per cent tax on building materials. It did not accept the many useful suggestions to loosen the money market and bring private capital into the building industry. And, the speaker said, it did nothing to curb exorbitant profits which were pricing real estate out of the reach of all the country's poorer people and 80 per cent of its middle-income citizens.

"Until the government realizes that this country is facing a real crisis and accepts its responsibility, we will continue to be in trouble," Mr. Gratfey said.

Appeal Hits

$414,294

Donations to the United Red Feather Red Cross Appeal reached $414,294 by 5 p.m. Wednesday, or 53.1 per cent of the $780,000 goal. Residential donations totalled $28,464 — 32 per cent of that division's $111,000 goal.

Cordova Bay Site Revived As Hovercraft Possibility

Still smarting from Oak Bay's rejection, commercial hovercraft official B. W. Heeney declared Wednesday night: "We'll get into the Victoria area yet, even if I have to carry the hovercraft over from Vancouver on my back."

However, it appeared that the disappointed executive vice-president of Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. might yet find a more conventional solution for his problems. Cordova Bay businessman Bruce McMorran said his brother, Eric, planned to talk to hovercraft officials this week about the possibility of establishing a Cordova Bay port.

Eric McMorran is in Vancouver on other business.

The Colonist reported during the summer that Cordova Bay was presumably being studied as a possible landing site for the hovercraft.

Bruce McMorran said Wednesday night that his brother had been approached much earlier by the company, at a time when various prospective landing sites were being investigated. But there had been no recent communications.

The hovercraft company, planning passenger service between Vancouver and Greater Victoria and Nanaimo, announced earlier that the first run would be made Dec. 21.

DELAY LIKELY

"But that setback at Oak Bay is going to have its effect," Mr. Heeney said, admitting that any opening of service to the southern end of the Island would be delayed.

Plans to establish a landing site at Oak Bay Marina was scuttled by the municipal council Monday night when it decided not to allow even trial period for the hovercraft.

Petitions had been signed by residents opposing the marina site. Council also voiced opposition to the noise factor, commercialism and the hazard it felt the hovercraft would create for sail boats.

OPINION NEEDED

Mr. Heeney said the only hope of reversing Oak Bay's decision lay with the people of the community. He said he knew that many did not agree with "the vociferous minority" who appeared before council objecting to the hovercraft service.

Enough pressure from those wanting Oak Bay as a port site could cause council to reassess its stand, he said.

Of himself and others associated with the company, he said: "We're Irish enough not to accept first refusals."

Walkers Will Use Pat Bay Overpass

Overpasses for pedestrians will be included in the current Patricia Bay Highway reconstruction program, MLA John Tisdalle said Wednesday.

Adequate provision is being made for overpasses for students going to and from school, the Social Credit member for Saanich and the Islands said. He said he was keeping in close touch with Highways Minister Wesley Black for announcement of overpass locations.

"There's little hope of the highway along Elk Lake being moved at this time," reported Mr. Tisdalle.

Incorporation

Province Sets Vote Date Soon

In 30 days, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will set a date for taxpayers to decide if they want self-government for Colwood, Langford and Metchosis.

Probable date will be Feb. 1 next year—two months later than the study committee had originally asked for.

Mr. Campbell said he would like to hear from individuals and groups with ideas on the timing of the referendum before making a final decision.

MORE TIME

Study committee chairman Stan Hisecock, a leading proponent of incorporation, said Wednesday he felt the later date would give more time to get information to the people.

"Mr. Campbell is very conscious of the need for a favorable climate for this vote," said Mr. Hisecock. "He feels we would be pushing it too much to try to reach all the people by December."

"I agree with him."

An opponent, Andy Cottyn, said he was only interested in being told the full facts of incorporation.

"I might even be for it, if I knew exactly what this would cost," he said.

"They say municipal government wouldn't raise the mill rate, but they can only hope to run a Mickey Mouse government on that kind of money."

"The study committee has put in a lot of time on this, and I would like them to take further time to draw up a budget based on, say, a 20-mill rate and tell us what we would get."

NOT ACTUAL EXPENSE

"It's not the actual expense that's bothering people, so much as wondering just what they would get for their money."

Mr. Cottyn said he would be glad to see the matter put to a vote.

"It's dragged on too long already," he said.

Stray Dogs Worrying Sheep in Metchosis

A black collie-type dog with a white chest and a young, long-haired brown dog in Metchosis are suspected sheep worriers. The dogs could be taken away to be destroyed, they could be shot, and in any case their owners could find themselves liable for heavy damages, one sheep farmer said.

Colwood RCMP said Wednesday they had had three reports of sheep-worrying from Metchosis in one day. "These are the first reports for some time, and we have pretty good descriptions of the dogs," said an RCMP spokesman.

"Our first step, when we are sure of the responsible dogs and their owners, will be to ask that the dogs be kept tied up. If necessary, we shall have to take them away."

Mrs. T. A. Coburn of Wootton Road had a sheep severely torn and two others injured by marauding dogs in the early hours of the morning.

Later farmer Geoff Mitchell had to drive two dogs away from his ewes.

Modest Service, Fees

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL Secret admirers, tongue-tied suitors, worshippers form afar—Bill and Joe will break the ice for a modest fee.

After the first day in operation, Bill's and Joe's Modest Proposal Service has a good record. It has already fixed up two dates for two hesitant Victoria gentlemen.

Bill Thomas (not the one on the Colonist) and Joe Regnitz received 11 calls Wednesday, nine of which were seriously interested in getting help for their modest problems.

The service works like this: a serious applicant must put with $5 to engage the services of Bill and Joe. The caller must know his or her secret love, and vice-versa. This is not a lonely hearts club operation.

Then Bill or Joe interviews the object of affection to see if he or she is willing to give it a try. If a date is arranged, there is another $5 fee.

One date, says Bill, should be enough to get things started. Unless, of course, the matter of marriage comes up. The minimum fee for putting the big question is $25. Top fee of $35 would be charged if prolonged negotiations were needed.

Although a marriage contract hasn't yet been asked for, Bill has the necessary experience. In fact, it was just such a situation that gave Bill and Joe the idea of starting their service.

One month ago, a friend of Bill's unloaded his problems over a late-night tipping session.

"My friend was a big, brash, outspoken individual, but when it got down to asking for a date, he couldn't do it."

Bill's friend's friend was in Ottawa, so it was 5 a.m. there when her telephone rang and a marriage proposal was put by Bill the middleman.

It worked. The wedding will take place Jan. 12.

Bill believes it can work for others in Victoria. "A lot of people here need help," he says. "So far, response has been excellent."

How will shy Victorians take to the idea of a stranger fulfilling this most important function for them? Bill's wife, who answers the telephone with a charmingly accented voice, seems to think Bill will do the job admirably.

"Some people need someone with experience in proposing," she says. "He asked me, and did it very nicely."
